There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. VARIETY OF DAIRY BREEDS.

Only a Half Dozen Known in This Country and All Are Good.

Everybody who gets the reputation of knowing anything about dairying is bound to receive a great many letters and inquiries as to the value of different dairy breeds, their history and their characteristics, says a contributor to the Farm Progress. Now, there are only about a half dozen dairy breeds that are widely known in this country, and all of them are good. Some are better adapted than are others to a given locality, but the would be dairyman will usually make no mistake in choosing the breed that is already well known in the neighborhood in which he is about to start up in business.

Probably the Jersey is the best known dairy breed, taking the whole country over. Where the dairy is so called an expensive land and near a big city the dairy cows are usually Jerseys. They are not the heaviest milkers, but they are undoubtedly very economical producers of butter. The Jersey is extremely gentle and is about the ideal of the family cow. Her milk is rich, high colored, cream very readily, and the cow is usually averaging around 800 pounds in weight.

The Jersey is one of the channel breeds and takes her name from the Jersey Islands on the other side of the Atlantic. The Guernsey is the other well known dairy animal of the channel breeds. A little bigger than the Jersey, the Guernsey gives more milk and is more hardy. Her butter is yet lower than the butter made from the milk of any other dairy breed.

The dairy country of Holland gives us the familiar black and white Holstein, sometimes known as the "milk man's cow" because she is able to produce a gallon of milk from less feed than most of the other breeds. A grown Holstein will weigh anywhere from 1,150 to 1,800 pounds, and she requires a great deal of feed to keep her up to the top notch of production. Of later years the breeders are developing a strain of Holstein that produces milk much higher in butter fat than did the earlier individuals of the breed.

That has always been the main objection to the Holstein, the amount of fat content in the milk. The Ayrshire is less known than the dairy breed already mentioned. She is of Scotch origin and is fairly popular in the great Canadian dairying sections and in the northern part of the United States. On rough lands, stony and hilly pastures, she is a wonderful cow.

Most communities that have much of a dairying industry have pretty well decided upon the breed that will suit the local conditions best. For the dairying beginner about the best thing to do is to follow the lead of the men who have already achieved some success in the business of that community.
