Sustains Fractured Skull

Charles Frazier of Estacada was seriously injured Wednesday afternoon by a fall.

Late in the afternoon he was found unconscious in the barn, having apparently fallen from the loft. A physician was called immediately, whose examination disclosed a fracture at the base of the skull.

Up to this afternoon, Mr. Frazier was still unconscious, only occasionally partially rousing from the stupor.

A number of local people are contemplating attending the latter part of the week, the Grand Opera in Portland.

Several pretty good sample baskets of trout have been shown in town during the past week, although the speckled beauties are not biting up to standard yet, but Messrs. Heylman, Wagner, Boner, Marshall, Whitfield, Baker and other old experts are guarding the public, in case an epidemic of hydrophobia should start the fish to biting recklessly.

Albert Meilike of Oregon City, spent the week-end at the home of his parents in Elwood.

Mrs. M. T. Freeman of Elwood is spending a few days in Oregon City, attending to business matters connected with her property.

Fred Bannister of Estacada spent a few days recently at the home of L. C. Unger in Elwood.

Investment Bargains.

The investor who picks up desirable property when everybody is selling and no one buying will have to wait only a reasonable time to secure his reward. I recall when real estate in several large cities was a drug on the market. Everybody seemed anxious to sell and no one to buy, but the buyers in those periods have realized enormous profits, far greater than one can get in the Stock Exchange.

The man who has money, even if it is but a small amount, can always turn it over to advantage if he will wait for the opportunity. Don't go with the crowd when every one is wild to buy something, but quietly abide an opportunity when everybody is anxious to unload and buyers are few. At such a time the bargain counter opens. —Leslie's.
