The News has several times called attention to the flagrant violations of the speed laws within the limits of the City of Estacada, but apparently more radical measures will have to be adopted before the laws are complied with.

Speed limit signs, reading "15 Miles Per Hour" are to be seen on the roads leading into town, but are flagrantly disregarded by auto drivers and motorcyclists.

Tourists and machines from distant sections are not the violators, probably being used to observing the speed limits in sections where the law is enforced, but the local autoists both in Estacada and from nearby sections are not careful.

Repeated complaints have been registered against certain drivers who pass through Estacada business streets at more than fifteen miles per hour, especially turning the corners at as high speed as will protect themselves, but endangering the lives of pedestrians and especially the children.

On the stretch near the school yard, where the speed should be regulated, many machines tear by at their maximum rate.

The City Council of Estacada has ordered the city marshal to enforce this law and will stand behind him in the prosecution of any and all parties found guilty.

If warnings have no effect, it is likely that a $10. fine will help and no votes will be issued with the payment of same either.

Probably every housewife and business man in the country recently has been wondering just how many ingredients are used in the composition of gun powder and projectiles, providing all products which are steadily soaring in price, really are inflated by the demand for more ammunition.

The News can only answer for its own line of business, but according to the rising quotations, gunpowder and bullets are made of all grades of paper, with plenty of brilliant coloring, a fair amount of ink, presses, glue, office furniture, paper cutters and stapling machines.

But whether the raise in price is warranted or not, it will not be many months before the $1. per year weekly paper will be a thing of the past, with the publisher struggling to make both ends meet at $1.50 per and in advance.

Travel 14 Feet of Snow

Clyde Schock of the P. R. L. & P. Co's local engineering crew, last week with a companion made the trip from Estacada to Olalla Lake, where he adjusted the water gauging instruments at that point, installed by the company in obtaining statistics relative to the volume of water from that source.

The hikers, with the aid of snow shoes, covered in all, over 145 miles, over log strewn trails and fully one-third of the journey was made over snow, which in places was 14 feet deep on the level.

The amount of snow in the mountains this spring is far in excess of last year and will mean much high water later in the season. Aside from one bear, the travellers saw no other animal life, excepting tracks.

$125. Per Day

The Canby Cheese Factory, which started in business only a few months ago, is now turning out a daily product, valued at $125., which means $3,750. per month or $45,000. per year.

The News has heard nothing further from the promoters of a similar factory in Estacada, but hopes to be able to chronicle the fact that it is still being considered.

Log La Barre Pleases

Fifteen couples from Estacada, with a number of out of town friends, motored to Log LaBarre last Saturday evening, where they enjoyed a delightful dance, followed by a midnight supper.

It had been feared that owing to the supposed condition of the roads, much trouble would be experienced in getting to the resort, but all motorists were agreeably surprised to find the roads in good shape most of the way and entirely passable the balance. The News had expected to chronicle the superiority of certain makes of machines in this attempt to reach Log La Barre, as each auto owner felt confident of the pulling and climbing powers of his particular car, but as every car made the trip easily, it still leaves the old question unsettled and the prospective auto buyers will have to find a harder test than a Log La Barre run on a rainy night.

Miss Grace Sequest entertained with an informal dance in honor of Miss Audrey Gentry of Portland, one evening last week, at her home in Springwater. Mrs. Edgar Horner acted as chaperone to the party, which spent the evening dancing in the large rooms. Light refreshments and ice cream were served and everyone had a good time.
