City Jail On Fire

In order to demonstrate to the Estacada city council the efficacy of Pyrene hand fire extinguishers, a salesman Tuesday afternoon, with the consent and aid of the councilmen and a crowd of onlookers, started a roaring fire in the city jail building, then with two quarts of the extinguisher completely extinguished the flames.

The fire was allowed to get a good start, with flames leaping through the wooden walls and bed bugs and similar remembrances of the town's guests, beating it for fresh air. As a disinfectant for the building and as an example of the workings of the extinguisher, it was a success. The city council are considering installing a number of these extinguishers in public places, for emergency use.
