To Repair Devil's Washboard

Barton, Oregon,
June 23, 1916.

Editor News:

County Judge H. S. Anderson and County Road Boss T. A. Roots inspected the roads in this vicinity one day last week.

They report good progress on the work now being done on the South side of the Clackamas between Barton and Bakers Bridge. One particularly bad stretch of this road lying in the timber about 1½ miles from Barton has been graded up and put in good condition.

Mr. Roots said his road grading crew will bring a roller into this territory as soon as he can jerk one loose from its present moorings and then they will spike, scarify and otherwise tear up the road between Barton and the Eagle Creek Bridge. This process will get rid of bumps and boulders and followed up by rolling and packing the loose surface will insure a smooth road.

This means the passing of a very old friend: namely—the Devil's Washboard near Goose Creek. This part of the highway has been almost as popular with automobile drivers as the famous Amazacher Hill on the Boring road, which reminds us in spite of all the adverse criticism and publicity which has been directed at this hill, conditions there are but little better than they were last spring.

Signed John C. Miller.
