

Heard On The Rural Phone

"Hello Maude, how is Will?"

"Will is alright, only that he is awfully tired tonight. Shipped his hogs today and he had to get up so early this morning that he's all in. He didn't intend to ship this week, but Givens told him he thought best as the market will probably decline before the next shipment, and as long as he could get nine cents for them he let them go, and besides we wanted to lay in a supply of groceries before the roads get bad."

"I suppose you bought the groceries from Givens so as to get your 2% discount. Givens must be giving you a rake off the way you are all the time boosting for him."

"Of course I bought them from Givens. I buy every thing there that we need in the lines that he handles, but we not only get better prices than any place else, but we save the 2% and besides we always sell Givens all of our eggs, chickens, potatoes and grain, and I believe in buying from the ones that you can sell to, as long as you are treated right."

"They tell me you're getting to be a regular miser the way you chase those discount slips around."

"Well Maude I must go now I'll call you up again next week before the news goes to press so that if there is any thing new we can talk it over and give the public the benefit of our private business."

Just then Central cut us off so we just went right on selling GROCERIES, FLOUR, FEED, POULTRY SUPPLIES AND SUNDRY LINES, and the above conversation shows that most folk know that our slogan is becoming a reality and that indeed

H. H. Hoffmeister's daughter, Mrs. Lilly Ehmsen, has moved out from Portland to the home of her father and will keep house for him this winter.

A number of Eagle Creekites visited the East Clackamas Fair at Estacada last week.

H. S. Jones spent Sunday with Mrs. Viola Douglass and son Carl.

Some of the farmers are through digging potatoes, but others are still busy with them.

Grandma Judd, Mrs. Geo. Judd, Mrs. Fred Hoffmeister, and Misses Edna Kennedy and Myrtle Hoffmeister visited with Mrs. R.

M. Brasch Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Douglass, accompanied by Mildred and Florice Douglass, attended the Sandy Fair Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Douglass visited with Logan relatives over Sunday.

Jim Smith lost some of his farm machinery and shed by fire Sunday. It was probably set by a spark flying from a neighboring fire.

Miss Iva Mumpower, who has been working for Mrs. Howlett, was called home by the death of her grandmother last week.

Mrs. Walter Douglass was a Portland visitor Tuesday.

Salary.
Soldiers once received salt as part of their pay. When the salt was commuted for cash the latter was called "salarium," salt money, or "salary."
