Round-Up Days Recalled

On last Friday, a carload of livestock was shipped from the Estacada yards, being the third for last week, comprising a couple dozen hogs and as many head of cattle.

These cattle represented the offerings from several distant parts of the county, the animals being escorted to the yards by mounted owners, who exercised all of the ability of seasoned cow-punchers.

As several of the critters had been born and raised in the mountains and were not accustomed to the environments of civilization, they naturally shied at automobiles, hard-surfaced pavements and other metropolitan perquisites of the City of Estacada.

The final loading onto the car was quite a scene, but you've got to hand it to that livestock buyer Givens, for when it comes to fearlessly handling the bull, he is just as much at ease as when handling the gentle cows, meek steers, timid calves or bashful heifers.

Miss Polly Watson of Arizona is a guest at the home of her girlhood friend, Mrs. Lee A. Wells of Estacada.
