Hounds and Hunters Kill Coyotes

For the past two weeks great sport has been enjoyed by some of the Garfield farmers, headed by Frank Thomas and the Crawford brothers, in the hounding and shooting of coyotes, many of which have come down from the mountains into the adjoining farming sections.

Already a half dozen have been killed, although every animal pursued by the hounds has not succumbed to a bullet, as one speedy animal escaped fifteen shots in a day.

Similar sport is being enjoyed by some of the hunters from upper Eagle Creek, with at one time, two packs of hounds, one from Eagle Creek and one from Garfield, having chased their quarries to within a mile of Estacada.
