

THE PASSING OF FATHER SIMPSON

The Rev. J. E. H. Simpson who for several years has made his summer home on the south side of the river, passed suddenly away last Saturday night. He had only returned the day before, after being two months in the Good Samaritan hospital. He had enjoyed the drive from Portland and showed great pleasure in seeing his little home again. That evening (Friday) he complained of being tired, and soon after a hemorrhage of the brain occurred, and he relapsed into unconsciousness, from which he did not rally and the end came.

Thus closed the earthly career of one whom it can be truly said, that "he was a good man, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost," and in practical manifestation one who did justly, loved mercy and walked humbly with his God. Although of very strong, religious convictions, his loving spirit embraced all of whatsoever faith or unfaith. It was sufficient for him that they were in need of his help and services. So he drew to himself many who were not of his faith or fold, and thus his ministry extended far beyond the bounds of his parish. The sympathy of the entire community will go out to his bereaved family.

The funeral services took place Tuesday, in his former church, St. Mark's, Portland, with interment in the Riverview cemetery. Unfortunately his son John who is in the U. S. naval service was not able to arrive in time.

He was born at Drumsnatt, County Monahan, Ireland, about 58 years ago. His father, Rev. Samuel H. Simpson, his grandfather and great-grandfather all were ministers of the Episcopal church of Ireland, the sister church of the Episcopal church of the United States of America.

Arriving in this country in 1883, the future rector of St. Mark's, took theological training at Seabury Hall, Faribault, Minn., graduating in 1891. Ordained as deacon and priest by Bishop George Worthington, Omaha, Neb., Rev., Mr. Simpson's first pastoral charge was at Wymore, Neb. Later he was rector of Grace Episcopal church, Council Bluffs, Iowa. In 1896 he became rector of St. Mark's, then located at Nineteenth and Quimby streets, Portland.

He married twenty-five years ago Miss Elizabeth Sallinger, daughter of Rev. E. Sallinger, St. Paul, Minn. There are two children, John E. Simpson, Jr., an Oregon Agricultural college graduate, now serving in the United States navy, and Eleanor, who was at school at St. Helen's Hall.

September 1, 1918, Father Simpson became rector emeritus of St. Mark's and was succeeded in that position by Rev. John G. Hatton, the present rector. Father Simpson is also survived by two brothers, Rev. Edmund Simpson, of Corvallis, Ore., and Rev. Marcus Simpson, Cheshire, Conn., and one sister, Miss Eleanor Simpson, of Portland.

Mrs. James Akin and Robert spent several days in Portland visiting friends and shopping.

The Misses Carrie Dorthy and Jennie DeShazer and Mrs. Lula Updegrave visited their uncle J. DeShazer and family Sunday.

Miss Fay young who has been visiting her parents for several days, returned to Oak Grove Sunday.

Here's the way
we look at it

Just for a minute, look at the tire proposition from our standpoint.

We are in the tire business here, to stay. We can remain in business only so long as we please our customers.

Consequently, it pays us to handle good tires—United States Tires.

They're the tires we sell.

They're the tires you should use.

We have them to meet every need of price or use.

United States Tires are Good Tires

We know United States Tires are good tires. That's why we sell them.
