LIVE WIRES ADDRESS LARGE AUDIENCE

At 8:30 last evening, Mayor Bartlett called the meeting to order in the High School to hear the Live Wires from Oregon City talk on the subject of good roads and the Mt. Hood Loop in particular. A good sized audience listened very attentively to what was said.

Mayor Bartlett briefly introduced each speaker. The first was Representative Harvey E. Cross who spoke on the need of good roads recalling some incidents of early days when he taught school. Judge Anderson of the county court was next called on, and he dwelt on good roads, being a good investment and also advocated the redistricting of the road precincts. The next two were evidently bashful, for they only spoke about a minute each. Dr. Morris of Oregon City, who is president of the Mt. Hood Loop Association pledged the efforts of the county seat to secure the road coming thru Estacada. E. E. Brodie editor of the Oregon City Enterprise gave an illuminating explanation of the measures to be submitted to the voters in June.

County Commissioner Holman of Multnomah, made the great speech of the evening in relating his experiences as commissioner. He is the man who was mainly responsible for the Columbia Highway. If space allowed, we would like to give an extended summary of his speech, which abounded in telling points. His main maxims were that "economy is not parsimony, nor parsimony economy," that we should build now for the present needs and let the future take care of itself, that we should depend on our own efforts, and not rely too much on state aid; that money should be freely expended, but care taken to obtain full value for every dollar expended.

County Roadmaster Root made the final address, outlining how the road work is done and advocating a smaller number of road districts. The meeting was highly successful, altho disappointment was expressed that the Mt. Hood loop road was not more fully described. But this omission can be rectified at a later date.

C. M. Mattoon of Garfield, Invests in a Fordson Tractor

The Fordson tractor demonstration on the farm of C. M. Mattoon of Garfield, last Saturday, was a complete success. It plowed and doubled disced an orchard where the plowing was heavy.

Mr. Mattoon was so much pleased with the result, that he invested in one. This machine is handled by the Reed Auto Co. which is the Ford agency in this town.

Sunday morning Mr. Shibley of the Reed Auto Co. heard a report like an explosion, in the neighborhood of the garage. Instantly he thought of safe blowers, and hurried out to call up his partner Mr. Reed. But investigation showed that the noise was caused by the bursting tire of a car, which was making an early start.

Go to the Cascade garage for bargains in used cars.

Chautauqua Early in June

Estacada's second Chautauqua will be held June 3-4-5 this year under the direction of the Radcliffe association of Washington, D. C. The Radcliffe program for 1919 hails the dawn of a new day. The quickening of American ambition, following the war against autocracy, is to be seized while fervor is at white heat and shaped into a nationwide crusade for Education. Education and more Education in Health, in Honor and Efficiency, so that no enemy without or within can deprive us of the right to Happiness.

The local committee will soon have to go to work to secure subscriptions for tickets and they should meet with liberal response, as it is not for their own benefit they are working, but for that of the community.

A Serious Loss

Ben Johnson of Barton had the misfortune, Sunday afternoon, to have his house burn down. The insurance on it expired just a day or two previously, and he intended to have it renewed on Tuesday. W. P. Ferrel was in town Tuesday, taking up a collection for the unfortunate man, as the loss was a total one including $150 which was in the house at the time. Mr. Johnson had just finished painting and otherwise improving it.

MAY DAY SOCIAL A GRAND SUCCESS

The May day supper in the basement of the Methodist church was a success in every way. The tables representing the various months of the year were very prettily and ingeniously decorated in appropriate ways. That for January had for its centrepiece a skating pond; February was decorated with hearts and figures in colonial costumes; March had a mossy stone in the centre and festoons of broom; April had a globe with gold fish, indicating the opening of the fishing season, with bunches of apple blossoms arranged around it; May's color scheme was pink and white, while June sported a large wedding ring with a kewpie standing in it; July was dressed in the patriotic colors with a giant firecracker for the centrepiece; August showed a camping scene, while September displayed the fruits of the year; October indicated harvest home, by a shock of corn and ears. November in many respects was the most original, showing it was the armistice month by a display of flags of the allies; December displayed a Christmas tree.

A prize was offered for the most artistic appearing table and the award was given to the May table. But the judges felt it was a difficult matter to decide, as some months lent themselves to more effective decorations than others. If originality had been the test, the November table would have been the winner. The October table elicited very favorable mention, and would probably have been chosen if an additional touch of color had been given to it by some leaves or apples for instance. After the supper an interesting program was rendered in the church auditorium.

Miss Florence Kendall and Miss Wallace rode out thirty miles to the government station at Oak Grove, where they spent the week-end.
