

A Boon and a Bargain

One of the characters in a recent theatrical success discusses people:

"There ain't but two kinds", says he. "Them that's good and them that ain't."

Same's true of tires. That's why we're so insistent that you use good tires—United States Tires.

After you've used the other kind for a season or so, you'll find United States Tires a boon, a blessing and a bargain.

There are five different types—one for every need of price or use. And they're all good—mighty good.

Better get in touch with us.

United States Tires are Good Tires

We know United States Tires are good tires. That's why we sell the n.

LINK FROM EAST TO WEST

Historic Occasion When Great Transcontinental Railroad Lines Were Formally Connected.

The ground for the railroad through to the Pacific coast was broken at Sacramento, Cal., and Omaha, Neb., January 8, 1863. Then began the race between the Union Pacific and the Central Pacific to cover the greatest mileage of construction. The rails of the two lines met at Promontory point, 1,085 4-5 miles from Omaha and 690 miles east of Sacramento. Gov. Leland Stanford, in behalf of the Central Pacific, now known as the Southern Pacific, drove the last spike connecting the roads, using a silver mallet. Telegraph wires were so attached as to announce the blow as they fell. Two hundred and twenty guns were fired from the batteries at San Francisco on receipt of the signals.

The golden spike was made of 23 $20 gold pieces and was worth $460. On it was engraved, "The last spike; may God continue the unity of the country as these railroads unite the two great oceans of the world."

In those days many of the engines were wood-burning and only three or four cords of wood could be carried on the engine-tender. It took three days and nights to travel on the train from Salt Lake to the Missouri river. Now the trip is made in 36 hours.

DWELL UNDERGROUND IN BREST-LITOVSK

Jewish Relief Worker Finds His People Living in Holes in Polish Town.

New York.—Typical of the condition of Jewish communities throughout Poland and adjacent countries is the story of Brest-Litovsk, as recounted by Dr. Boris D. Bogen, executive director of Jewish relief work in Poland, in a report received recently at the headquarters of the American Jewish Relief Committee, 15 East Fortieth street, here.

The population of the town where a couple of years ago the Germans tried to dictate a "peace of violence" to the Russians is now reduced to about 25,000. Of this number 18,000 are Jews, writes Dr. Bogen. So complete was the war time destruction of the town that most of the people are forced to live in mere holes in the ground. There is a semblance of a hospital without windows, doors or means of heating, but so prevalent are typhus, tuberculosis and other diseases brought on by malnutrition that this institution, like all other Jewish hospitals in eastern Europe, is overwhelmed.

"The Jews of America," writes Dr. Bogen, "must take immediate steps to provide for the housing, clothing and feeding of the thousands of destitute Jews in eastern Europe. It will require considerable additional funds to re-equip the hospitals, old folks' homes and orphanages that the Jews have maintained throughout Poland to care for their sick and poor, but these institutions must be gotten into shape for the coming severe winter.

"The people are in a terrible condition everywhere, and in great need of the veriest necessities. Homes throughout this region are entirely destroyed for the most part. Refugees who months or years ago were evacuated from the cities are now returning. There is practically no work for them, however, and they are in direst need."

To provide the funds for remedying these terrible conditions, the American Jewish Relief Committee, under the chairmanship of Louis Marshall and the directorship of Henry H. Rosenfelt, is now engaged in conducting a series of state campaigns throughout the Union. The total amount estimated as necessary to finance the essential relief work for another year is $35,000,000.

PLUTOCRATS.

They had some very expensive presents at the De Bosh wedding.

Did they? What did her father give them?

Two barrels of sugar and a ton of coal.

Might Do There.

"This new clerk doesn't seem to know anything whatever about anything."

"Well, that won't do for silks or dress goods. Put him in the book department."

Pardonable Suspicion.

"Do you think the ex-kaiser ought to be tried?"

"I have my doubts. I understand he still has enough money to hire some pretty smart lawyers."
