Rev. G. Schmid, who was in charge of the Christian church this summer and who had to resign on account of ill health, spent the week-end here. His many friends rejoice to learn that his health has been fully restored. He went for a month to the Lindemann hospital at San Francisco, where he was put to bed and kept on a purely milk diet. This eliminated the poison out of his system and set him on the road to recovery. He is returning to the Bible University at Eugene to finish up his course which was interrupted by his joining the service.

The Rev. Charles E. Farrar, rector of Christ Church (Episcopal) Eureka, California, visited his former classmate, the editor of this paper, Friday and Saturday of last week. It was a mutual pleasure as both had not seen each other for twelve years. They talked over the old seminary days of a quarter of a century ago, recalling former incidents and fellow students. On looking back, time does not seem as long as the number of years would indicate, but its length is more perceptible when the changes that have taken place in the interim are noted. Mr. Farrar was on his way home from the General Convention which met at Detroit, Mich., and is one of the directors for the Nation Wide Campaign in his diocese (Sacramento) for raising a sum of $50,000,000 for church work.

ESTACADA

A glistening gleam of shimmering blue
Lies on the mountain crest,
While I idly sit and happily dream
With my roving thoughts at rest.
Have you ever seen on land or sea,
A sight so fair as this,
Where the sky above and the land
beneath
Seemed to meet in a lover's kiss?
In the mystic maze of the morning,
You list to the birdling's call
And lie entranced on dreamland's shore
Still clasped in sleep's enthrall.
Thro the glowing heat of the mid day,
You breath the forest's balm,
And over the sun-kissed city
Breaths a peace serene and calm.
But when the shadows darken
And the sunlight turns to gray,
The glory of the eve-tide
Is lovelier far than day.
The air is like clear crystal,
The sunshine burnished gold,
And my heart is warm and tender
Toward this peaceful city old.
