ESTACADA WHIPS HOOD RIVER

In one of the hardest fought games of the season, Estacada on Armistice Day, took the Hood River football team into camp by the score of 12 to 6. The game was full of thrills from start to finish, and all who took the trip to Hood River to see the game were amply repaid for their trouble.

Estacada received the ball on the kick off and carried it over for the initial touchdown in the first three minutes of play. The attack of the local team completely carried their opponents off their feet and with but six plays, three straight bucks, two forward passes and an end run, the ball was over. Lovelace failed to kick goal. Estacada then kicked off to Hood River who marched down the field using a set of shift plays which bewildered our boys at first. Hood River soon managed to score but also failed to kick goal, making the score 6-6.

Estacada then received, but the quarter ended soon afterwards. Early in the second quarter Lovelace skirted around left end for the final score of the game. From this point on, it was only a question of how big a score Estacada would run up, because the boys kept the ball in Hood River territory the balance of the game and were prevented from scoring more by luck than anything else.

American Legion to Organize

A post of the American Legion will be organized Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at the Family Theatre. Special representatives from Portland will speak and help in the work. Those joining now will be reckoned as charter members. Every soldier, sailor and marine who served in the late war is eligible for membership.

This order is not partisan but stands for Americanism pure and simple. Its aim is to conserve the rights and liberties of this nation against foreign encroachment and propaganda. That such an organization has its work cut out for it, is shown by the infamous attack on its members on Armistice Day at Chehalis. Those who rallied to the colors when war was declared, should rally now to make sure that their sacrifices shall not have been in vain. Every service man is expected to be present, but if not able to, at least send in his name and join at the earliest opportunity.

Dunlop officiating and the interment took place at Eagle Creek.

OBITUARY

WOODWORTH—At the home of her son W. R. Woodworth, in Estacada, Friday, Nov. 7, 1919, of acute dilation of the heart, Mrs. Margaret J. Woodworth, aged 75 years. Two days after celebrating her seventy-fifth birthday, the deceased was suddenly called away. Her maiden name was Margaret J. Mabie and she was born in Brock, Ontario, Canada, of Canadian parents. At an early age she came to Michigan with her parents and later removed to Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota. She was united in marriage while still a young girl, to Walter C. Woodworth, who predeceased her. Of this union were born five children, all living with the exception of a little girl who died in infancy. The surviving children are Albert E. Woodworth of Breckenridge, Minn., Warren R. of Estacada, Freeland E. of Portland and Mrs. Irene Maltby of St. Paul, Minn. She came to Oregon in July 1909, after spending one year in California with her brother and sister. Since being in Oregon she has lived with her sons in Portland and Estacada.

The deceased was a staunch member of the Methodist church and a devout Christian to whom the bible was "a lamp unto her feet and a light unto her path."

The funeral was held in the Methodist church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. It was largely attended. The Rev. J. F. Dunlop officiated, paying an eloquent and beautiful tribute to the virtues of the deceased. Mrs. McCune of Garfield and Miss Ruth Dillon sang "The Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The interment took place in the Lone Oak cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker Carlson of Gresham.

PAVING TRUST FIGHTS BONDS

The interesting development of the road bond campaign, during the past week, has been the effect of the announcement of the fight that is to be made by the people of the northern part of the county against the bonds. This together with the fight of the paving trust against them, has served to solidify the vote of this section in favor of the bonds. Our people, who for years have been helping to pave the roads in the Clackamas-Milwaukie district, resent the attitude of these people who now want to fight the attempt to give people in other portions of the county, the benefit of paved roads, such as been given them.

Our farmers and business men are practically solid for the bond issue and greatly appreciate the efforts of Chairman Latourette and the general committee, as well as those of Messrs. Brownell, Schuebel, Dimick, Eby, Renard, Hedges and other speakers, who are devoting their time and so much effort in favor of the bonds.

"THE OTHER HALF"

As in the case of his other two remarkable successful productions, "The Turn in the Road" and "Better Times," Vidor seems to have struck an intensely human note in this picture. "The proper study of mankind is man," says some sage, and the youthful author-director has taken it as a maxim.

That "one half of the world doesn't know how the other half lives" is the theme of the drama.

"No sentiment in business," was the money king's motto, and his son, Donald Trent, followed in his father's footsteps. But right away sentiment was injected into the affairs of the Trent Iron Works, for Donald's erstwhile pal in the army was nearly blinded by an accident that was caused by the criminal refusal of Donald to safeguard the lives of his workmen.
