Profitable Poultry

G. A. Masse, who lives on Estacada Heights, has a flock of 125 hens. These are part Rhode Island Reds, part O. A. C. White Leghorns and part a cross between the two. Mr. Massie says the mixture of the two breeds makes a very satisfactory combination, as the progeny are good layers and a good size. His egg record for February averaged from 60 to 70 eggs per day. Besides his laying hens he has sixteen which are setting.
