Thursday, April 7, 1921

We endorse the proposition of that American Legion post, that Bergdoll be prohibited from using the honored name of Grover Cleveland. Last week we purposely refrained, on this account, from using it in connection with him, and this was before we read the notice of the action of the post. The late Grover Cleveland was a man who never shirked a duty no matter how distasteful to him, and to allow one who proved a traitor to his country to use that honored name, is a gross insult to the memory of a great man and a patriot.

As we predicted last week, the American detectives who tried to arrest Bergdoll on German soil, have been released. And we are confirmed in our opinion that if the agitation to extradite Bergdoll is dropped, he will get so homesick after a while, that he will try to sneak home. They all do, as witness Jack Johnson, and numbers of former bank cashiers who absconded to Canada a few years ago, when there was no extradition treaty under which they could be arrested. It is said that a murderer is drawn to the scene of his crime, and it is remarkable how many escaped criminals risk arrest by returning home.

The editor acknowledges with thanks, a copy of his esteemed contemporary, the Hycada, and edited by the Adelic Society of the High School. It gives information that the senior class play will be given May 22. As this issue is dated April 1, the two middle pages were left blank with the exception of the legend, "April Fool." As it was also the spring number, a number of the stories showed the writers' thoughts were lightly turning to love. The next number, he believes, is to be issued under the auspices of the Websterian Society, and suggests that it might appropriately be of a high-brow character.

Keep up the Standard

Twenty-three students have been dismissed from the University of Oregon, and 100 placed on probation for the spring term, as a result of the winter term examinations. This is as it should be, if the University is to maintain a high standard. It will also react beneficially on the high schools of the state, because if these do not keep up a fair standard, it will become evident by their graduates failing in college. There is too much temptation to be lax in the high schools, and if the colleges hold to a high standard, it will help materially in upholding the hands of a conscientious high school principal in keeping up the standard of his school by refusing to pass the unqualified.

A new verb will probably be adopted as the result of the Bergdoll affair. To bergdoll will be used to denote first, evasion of military duty, and then evasion of any duty a man owes his country.
