A SAFE, SANE, ENJOYABLE FOURTH

The Fourth has come and gone. It was duly celebrated in Estacada and the way this was done, made it a day of pleasure rather than one of wearisome excitement. Nearly everybody in the vicinity seemed to have turned out, and many former Estacadans came from Portland and other points, so the occasion made a regular reunion of old friends and neighbors, which was perhaps the most pleasant feature of all. The weather was ideal, bright but cool. The program was arranged for by the Carl Douglass Post and was well received.

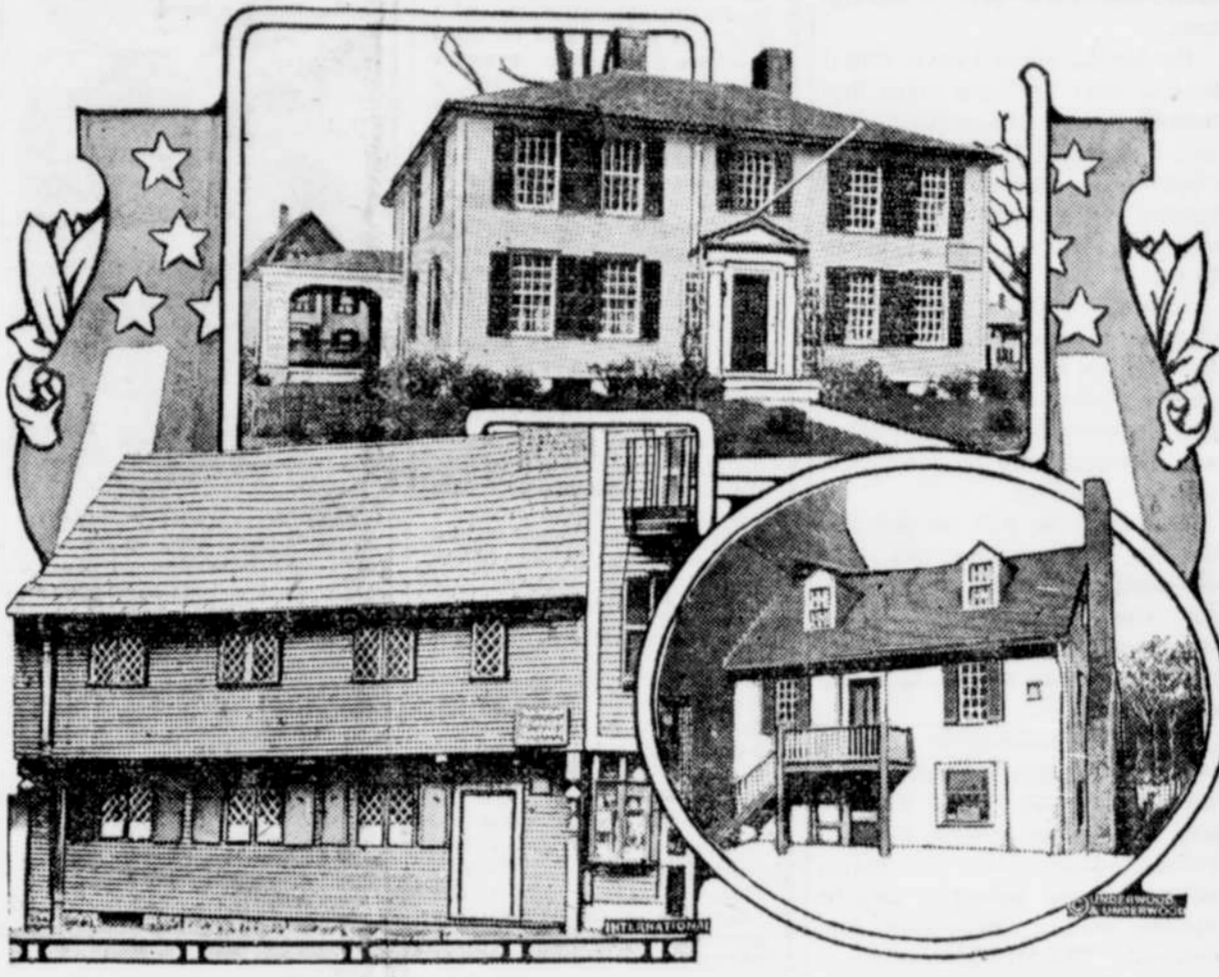

About 10:30 the parade marched down from the school house where it had formed, to national airs played by the Estacada band and led by W. A. Davidson and Rex Ludlow. Then followed G. A. R. veterans in autos, and right behind these marched the Carl Douglass Post and other service men. A formidable appearing "tank" protected them from behind provided by Raker & Son. The I. O. O. F. in regalia came next, and then the car carrying the Goddess of Liberty, Mrs. Audrey Linn, and her maids of honor, Gladys Miller, Ruby Hull and Helen Wooster. The Woman's Auxiliary float attracted a good deal of attention. This was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting and carried six girls, representing various branches of the auxiliary's service. Pauline Rose was a colonial girl, Mildred Douglass a yeomanette, Nova Smith an army nurse and Retha Ames a Red Cross nurse. Two truck loads of children next appeared, followed by citizens in automobiles which were all decorated in good taste. A very pretty feature was Baby Deming being drawn in a wagon with canopy of rambler roses, Rosco Deming Jr. dressed as the immortal George, held the tongue, while Mary Alice Reed and Ardella Dunlop, dressed in white, furnished the motive power. The Estacada Feed Co. had a float displaying a truck load of feed stuffs, the T. & T. Co. had one representing "central at the switch;" the Cascade garage sent a Case tractor and the Reed & Shibley firm a Rock Island tractor. The usual accompaniment of roustabouts were not wanting, one of whom was rigged up as a cannon cracker. The ladies of the Rebekah order marched with grace and dignity, dressed in white with sashes of the colors of the order, pink and green. These ladies after the parade, gave an exhibition drill on Broadway, the members of the I. O. O. F. likewise.

Picnic dinners were next in order and it was a most pleasing sight to see in the park, the number of family groups enjoying an appetizing dinner of chicken, pies, cakes, ice cream, etc.

Unfortunately the speaker of the day was prevented from coming, which caused some disappointment, but the band played several numbers, which made up for the omission. A number of races and other stunts were pulled off, and a boxing bout and wrestling match were held in the pavilion.

At 3 o'clock a base ball game was called on the school diamond between Estacada and a nine of the employes of Lang Co., Portland. It proved a close one, Estacada winning by a score of 3 to 1. The proceedings of the day closed with dancing from 8 to midnight.

REVOLUTIONARY LANDMARKS

Upper—Where the first man died in the Revolution. Wounded in the fight on Lexington Common, Jonathan Harrington crawled to the doorstep of his home and fell dead in the entrance just as his wife opened the door. The Harrington house, which has been carefully preserved, is at Lexington, Mass.
Left—Historic old-fashioned home of Paul Revere, from which the patriot started on his midnight ride to warn the people of Boston of the arrival of the British soldiers. The old house, situated in the North End, Boston, is visited frequently by tourists.
Right—Washington's headquarters in Georgetown. This quaint two-story structure was the headquarters of George Washington during 1790, when he was a surveyor. The structure was at that time a wayside inn of the main stage-coach road. It is constructed of native boulders, and is said to be as solid today as when built.

4th of July Notes

Estacada has some band. The railroad passenger traffic was immense.

The small boy was allowed to enjoy the festive firecracker to his heart's content.

The R. R. Co. merits a vote of thanks for the free use of the park and its conveniences.

Bob Marchbank made himself solid with the kids when he distributed free candy among them.

Dr. Morse's lawn Tuesday, resembled the morning after. The doctor had a big stunt cleaning up.

Again we regret to report that as the flag passed by in parade, a number of men and boys did not remove their hats.

The wisdom of the interdict of vehicles in the park, recently made by the R. R. Co. was apparent on the Fourth.

Contrast the order and absence of rowdiness of last Monday's celebration, with those of former years, when the state was wet though the day was dry, and the 18th amendment unthought of.

A small blaze on the roof of the residence of O. E. Syren, on Currin Street, caused a ripple of excitement about 10 o'clock. It was probably due to sparks from the chimney, and was soon put out with little damage resulting.

The contest for Goddess of Liberty waxed warm towards the finish. The final vote for those polling 100 votes or more, was as follows: Audrey Linn, I. O. O. F. nominee, 1,432; Ruby Hull, Springwater's nominee, 571; Gladys Miller, George's nominee, 139; Helen Wooster, Masonic nominee, 132.
