A COMING EVENT

A year from now, this month, a notable gathering will be held in Portland. It is the General Convention, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which meets triennially. This is the highest legislative body of that church, and its main business is in regard to such matters. But the occasion is utilized for receiving reports of the progress of the church throughout its entire jurisdiction, and the great missionary societies meet at the same time, so that missions occupy as much time, or almost so, as is devoted to legislation.

The personnel of the convention is, always interesting, as some of the most noted men and women, in political, professional, commercial and social life, besides the most notable religious leaders are present. Between one and two thousand delegates from outside will attend, and for three weeks these will give their time and attention to the work of the church. The convention is made up of two houses, the upper consisting of the bishops only, and the lower house of deputies, both clerical and lay, of the dioceses and missionary jurisdictions, from all parts over which "Old Glory" flies.

One of the most notable features of the convention is the special service in connection with the Woman's Auxiliary, at which a united offering is made for the missionary work of the church. This is in addition to all other subsidies which this society makes. This offering represents self sacrificing contributions for the three years past. Every member has a special blue cardboard box in which to deposit her offerings for this purpose, and these are collected by the various branches, and the amounts forwarded to headquarters to be placed on the plate at this great service. The last occasion was in 1919, when $468,060.41 was given in a lump sum.

Another memorable event, in the history of the church, which will be commemorated, is the centennial of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society. It will be the second time that the general convention meets on the Pacific Coast, the previous one being in 1901, at San Francisco.

The Oregon Churchman, the journal of the Episcopal Church in this state, has just issued a very interesting pre-convention number in connection. It contains letters from the venerable Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, expressing his gratification that the convention will be in Oregon, one from the executive head of the church, others from Governor Olcott and Mayor Baker, of Portland, addressed to Bishop Sumner, assuring him of their warm interest in the convention, and pledging it a cordial welcome. The use of the Auditorium has been given to the convention, and steps will be taken to confirm Portland's past enviable record as a convention city. As this convention will be composed of delegates from all over the United States, it will be an exceptional opportunity to advertise the Exposition of 1925. Wherever it has met heretofore, it has created a profound impression, and this coming one promises to be, in some important respects, more noteworthy than any of its predecessors.

ENCOURAGING SIGNS

The net income return of railroads for July, now available, climbed to $70,000,000, which is no less than $17,000,000 better than the previous month. The South is looking up and getting busy with cotton advancing to 21 cents with good chance of its going to a quarter of a dollar. Idle freight cars decreased more than 23,000 during the closing week of August. Wheat exports during same month were four times of what it ever was before in any pre-war August. Corn crop experts are predicting a huge crop, which will serve to balance the general grain shortage. Pig iron production increased notably. Shipments of automobiles also increased over the July totals, contrary to custom. So did postal receipts, building and construction work, and sales generally. The leather and textile industries report increased activity, and the liabilities attached to commercial failure register a notable decrease.—Sugarman's Indicator.

RED CROSS RELIEF

There were 70 disasters in the United States from January, 1920 to June 4th, 1921 in which the Red Cross rendered relief. One hundred and seventy-seven chapters had to meet disaster emergencies.

In these calamities hundreds of persons lost their lives, thousands were injured, more than ten thousand were made homeless, and millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed.

The American Red Cross must hear the "alert" when it sounds in order to render efficient assistance for no one can know where the next disaster is to strike. The larger chapters keep disaster relief supplies in readiness as well as nurses and other relief workers, who can go at a moment's notice. Preparedness for Disaster Relief is a strong plank in the permanent American Red Cross program.

MICHAELMAS DAY

Today, September 29, is somewhat remarkable. First of all it is a high festival in the church calendar, being known as the Feast of St. Michael and All Angels, or more briefly, "Michaelmas." In England it is one of the quarter days when quarterly rents are due and tenants of farms formerly went to the big house to pay their rents and were afterwards entertained by their landlord. Roast goose with apple sauce is the particular piece de resistance at dinner, the same as turkey is here on Thanksgiving. The day also marks the end of the long vacation for lawyers, when the law courts resume their sittings.

S. R. & CO. KNOW

"We have a bureau whose duty it is to read each week the country newspapers from all over the country. There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory that our bureau does not get. This bureau looks over these papers, and when we find a town where the merchants are not advertising in the local paper, we immediately flood that territory with our literature. It always results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants use their local papers," said Herman Rosenfield, advertising manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Dr. Brumfield has had another lapsus memoriae and it is puzzling the authorities whether it is real or feigned. It is somewhat remarkable that if he were subject to such losses of memory, that they did not occur during his married life, until he committed murder.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
X.—VIRGINIA

THE EARLY history of Virginia revolves about the name of Capt. John Smith. It was his indomitable spirit which enabled the settlement at Jamestown to survive the privations and difficulties that encompassed it during those first years. There in 1607 was made the first permanent English colony in America. The charter given by King James I to what was known as the London company, under whose auspices Jamestown and the later Virginia settlements were founded, designated that this colony should extend 200 miles north and 200 miles south of Old Point Comfort and stretch westward to the sea. Under the reign of Charles II it was considered such an important colony that it was called the fourth dominion of his empire, that is, England, Scotland, Ireland and Virginia. From this Virginia was often called the Old Dominion. The name Virginia itself means the virgin land and was so called after Queen Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen." The early government of Virginia is of great interest. At first communism was tried, under which system the land and all property was owned in common and all profits were divided equally. This proved a disastrous failure. In 1619 the first real representative government in the colonies was established, called the house of burgesses, which continued in force under varying fortunes until Virginia joined the Union and became the tenth state in 1788. Much might be written of the character of the early Virginian settlers and their great influence on American life. From Virginia has sprung two other states, Kentucky and West Virginia. Even so, the state's present area is 42,627 square miles. Politically the Old Dominion state is entitled to twelve presidential electors. This is about the average of the southern states.
