Mrs. Mae Reed was a business visitor in Portland Saturday.

Attention is called to the new ad of the Estacada Feed Co.

Mrs. P. S. Stamp and little son were Portland visitors last Friday.

There is constant pressure on our advertising space. It is a pressure we enjoy and appreciate.

Tuesday was Lyle Wagner's birthday, and to commemorate it, his friends gave him a shower of postcards.

Mrs. C. M. Naff is visiting her husband here, for a few days. This accounts for the smile on the face of the doctor.

Dr. R. G. McCall is still confined to his bed. His illness began with the flu and an abscess developed since in his throat, which is causing him much distress and pain. He knows now why a patient is well called a patient, for he needs to be patient. We hope he will soon be able to resume his former role of physician instead of that of a patient.

To Beat the H. C. L.

Houses are scarce and rents are high the world over, but two boys from the Dalles, Norman Rossel and Guy Ferry, who are now freshmen at the University of Oregon, have shown a resourceful independence of landlords. Their domicile is a tent under a leaning maple tree, about a half mile from the University campus, and they do their commuting on a motorcycle.

Their tent home is not a temporary expedient. They expect to live in it for four years. In June, 1925, they expect to step from its shelter, wearing caps and gowns.

Over a wooden foundation, the two men have placed an army wall tent. The wooden floor is boarded up from the sides for more than three feet. This wall is neatly covered with tar paper, and the tent fits snugly down over the sides. A jointed stovepipe protruding from the south side of the tent and a split pile of wood, bear witness that the men are standing by for chilly weather. Electric lights will soon be installed.

Thanks Much

We are in receipt of a package of Oregon cranberries, from the Oregon Cranberry Growers' Association. These berries came from the bogs of J. S. Dillinger, publisher of the Morning Astorian. While we have not as yet, sampled them, from their looks they are second to none of any we have seen. This industry promises to become a very important one on the western coast, and the newspaper fraternity will do well to make it known. Heretofore cranberries have been used only for pies and sauce, but the Association has put out a recipe for making them into a relish without cooking. This we print elsewhere. Our best thanks are extended to the Association.

Try this in Your Meat Grinder

CRANBERRY RELISH—Take the desired quantity of cranberries for use. Put them through an ordinary meat grinder. To each cup full of ground berries, add equal amount of sugar. Stir and mix thoroughly so that the sugar will melt and form a syrup. If it is to be used immediately it is desirable to place it on a radiator or the back of a stove, giving just sufficient heat to hasten the melting of the sugar, but under no circumstances should heat enough be applied to cook the berries in the slightest degree. Keep in a glass jar or an earthen dish. This will be found a delicious relish for general use at all times.
