Interesting Letter

Costa Mesa, Nov. 9, 1921.

DEAR EDITOR:]

Dear friends and neighbors, I have just finished reading Otis Wagner's letter and want to corroborate every word of it, only I will say, the trip can be made in a Ford. All of California is good, but the one spot is Orange County and the ideal place in Orange County is Costa Mesa. We can raise such a large variety of things we all enjoy and do have the ideal climate.

We have apples here equal to the noted Hood River apples. This place is settling up very fast. The community spirit is the best I ever saw. So you people in Oregon who want small acreage in California, come on down and spend the winter at Costa Mesa. We are trying to improve our little five-acre place and we are pulling up the stream. Mr. Bland and myself are enjoying good health. Enclosed you will find $1.50 for year's subscription for the EASTERN CLACKAMAS NEWS, which we enjoy reading so much.

Yours truly,
MRS. O. O. BLAND.

Obituary

(Published by request.)

After months of suffering, death came to Mrs. Amanda Paxton, on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 15th, aged fifty-five years, ten months and ten days. Mrs. Paxton had recently been to the hospital at Charlottesville, but there it was found she was suffering from cancer of the liver, and the physicians advised the husband that she was beyond medical aid, and that life was but the matter of a few months.

Deceased is survived by her husband, H. Grant Paxton, and the following children, all of whom were present in her last hours: Mrs. Rosa Looney, of Estacada, Ore., Mrs. C. P. Caldwell, of Sinking Creek, Geoffrey, Arthur, Virginia, Lillie and William; one sister, Mrs. Joe Paxton and a brother, Mr. Jacob Runnels, of Sinking Creek.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. J. A. Hopkins, of the Christian Church, of which the deceased was a member, were held at the grave near the residence of Mr. Dave Looney, on Sunday afternoon, in the presence of a crowd of neighbors and friends of the family, many coming for quite a distance to do honor to this good woman, kind neighbor, model wife and mother, whose earthly pilgrimage is over, but whose traits of character and life will live on and on.—Record, Newcastle, Va.
