THE RELIGIOUS GIBRALTAR

The Scriptures were given for a definite purpose. What is this? It was stated by the apostle Paul when writing to one of his disciples that "from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus," Then he proceeds in explanation: "Every scripture inspired of God is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: That the man of God may be complete, thoroughly furnished unto every good work."

In judging the scriptures the above object for which they are designed to serve, must be taken in view and not some other one. They were not intended to be either scientific or historical text books. Their sphere is that of religious faith, to which appeal is made. They were written primarily to believers, not to heathen, although their study may convert the unbelieving into believers. So it is that they can only be rightly judged by believers who put them to this test, whether or not they make them "wise unto salvation." The scriptures recognize this point in more than one place. "The natural (or unconverted) man receiveth not the things of the spirit for they are foolishness unto him; Neither can he know them for they are spiritually discerned." This is perfectly reasonable for spiritual truth can only be discerned by the spiritually enlightened, as music can only be rightly appreciated by those who have a musical ear. The same is true of other arts and also of the sciences. In wireless telegraphy the receiver has to be tuned to the transmitter to get the message, so the human mind has to be spiritually keyed to understand and receive a spiritual message.

Those who are thus in tune and apprehend what the scriptures impart concerning their salvation, are not disturbed by so called scientific or historical inaccuracies in them. What scientific book or history no matter of what high authority, has not been disputed in certain particulars? And seeing that the scriptures spread over centuries, none of the original manuscripts remaining, and the oldest extant are copies of other copies, and have been edited and re-edited, it would be inconceivable if no mistakes should occur in details, for it has never been claimed that the translators or copyists were inspired. But the believer holds that in the matters of salvation and righteousness, and the great doctrines therein involved, the scriptures are thoroughly reliable and what they teach concerning these is the truth. As to other questions such as the creation accounts, the credibility of the miracles which the scriptures record, or the longevity of the patriarchs, he is content to wait, confident that when these questions are finally cleared up, the scriptures will be vindicated, for most of the criticism directed against them is due to the critic reading in what the scriptures do not contain or assert.

An American Multi-millionaire paid a few months ago something over a half million dollars for a famous painting, "The Boy in Blue," by Gainsborough. Its coloring is said to be superb, but we saw "a tree in pink" last Sunday which would put the coloring of the picture in the shade. This was a tulip tree in full bloom; whose branches were a mass of pink blossoms with only the tip of an occasional leaf to be seen.

The time for election is drawing near. The NEWS is not backing any special candidate, in fact the editor is not quite decided yet for whom he will vote, and probably will not decide until the last minute. Perhaps between now and the 19th, election day, the political pot will warm up, but at present it is hardly simmering.

If France makes good her threat to invade Germany and collect her damages for reparations, there will be some lively and interesting developments.

When a subscriber who lives as far away as Kansas pays up his subscription to the NEWS to more than a year in advance, it makes the editor feel good. This pleasure was afforded us Saturday by J. A. Somer, a former resident, now of Black Wolf, Kansas.

Buick VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTOR CARS

Buick "Four" Also Drives Through the Third Member
Whether it is a Four or a Six, every Buick measures up to the same rigid Buick standards of design and construction. Whatever is Buick, is Buick throughout. The Buick Four, like the Buick Six, drives through the torque tube third member on the axle. Buick springs only support the body and ensure easy riding. A Buick rear spring, accidentally broken, cannot mis-align the axle and tie you up on the road. This design is generally found only on high-priced cars.
