SUNNY CALIFORNIA PLEASES WRITER

Escondido, California, July 21, 1922.

My dear Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs: Here we are, on sunny southern California soil, and we are enjoying the climate to the fullest extent * * * Sometime I will give you a rambling letter dealing with our trip, or rather impressions of California. At present my eyes will not allow me to do the writing. One day since our arrival there was a commotion in the heavens and it caused thunder, and YES, it RAINED, very unusual, but it rained just the same as in Oregon, only this shower did not last.

We like our house, our home, our land, our location, and best of all, our street, or boulevard, or highway. They have just poured the cement past our place and in three weeks all the inland highway traffic from Riverside, Fallbrook and Los Angeles and Oceanside will pass our door. Then we can sit in the shade of our palm trees and watch the procession go by in cars of all sizes, makes and prices, as well as trucks. We certainly are enjoying the ocean breezes (ocean only 14 miles away) as they come to us over the foothills and have all the rough edges taken off of them.

Mrs. Weatherby is improving each moment and walks and works as she never did or could do up north. The people here have taken us right in, no class distinction or anything of that kind, just real good fellowship. They are after me to go out and address meetings, cannery here wants a head, and just one hundred things to get into and take up my time. But I have been compelled by health to say NO to all of the present. We have a pleasant home, but as all of us must confess the home we have just left has many attractions for us, and the city and people.

I am pleased by your NEWS reports of the cannery and it is a measure of pride I have in the success of the same, as I did a lot of work to get it in shape; same with school work.

The people here certainly held out the glad hand to us and we want to live up to the fact that we left a good record behind us.

The apricot crop is just harvested, next comes peaches (and cream), and following that, the grapes. The annual great event here is September 9, when grapes are kings and queens.

With regards to you and yours,
GEORGE B. WEATHERBY.

Mrs. Sparks Entertains

Complimenting Miss Jennie Burns, who is here from Minnesota visiting at the home of her brother F. E. Burns, Mrs. A. E. Sparks delightfully entertained a few ladies at her home Tuesday afternoon. The time passed only too quickly with the guests who did needle work and visited. Delicious refreshments also added to the pleasure of the afternoon. Those who accepted the hospitality of the hostess were, Miss Jennie Burns, Mrs. F. E. Burns, Mrs. Upton H. Gibbs, Mrs. H. C. Stephens and Mrs. N. B. Ecker.
