Trap-Nested WHITE LEGHORNS

Bred for Vigor and High Egg production.

Our primary aim is to produce vigorous, husky chicks; healthy, rugged breeding stock, and first class hatching eggs. Hence, in many cases, our customers roll up bigger egg records than we do.
But we hold our mature stock back as long as possible after the molt and bring them into laying as near the hatching season as possible. Thus are our customers assured of strong, rugged chicks, and high quality hatching eggs.

Paving and Water

Roy Wilcox, J. F. Lovelace and Tom Morton drove over yesterday with J. C. Duus, to the county seat. While there they made arrangements for a surveyor to come over and survey both the Broadway and Main streets of town, and ascertain the specifications for each. Then bids will be called for on both streets, and these will be opened the same time as those for the county road on March 20. They also interviewed the Oregon City water board, and found that a scheme was being drawn up to form a water district comprising Gladstone and other near by communities, for a common water supply. The chairman of the board thought it would be perfectly feasible for Estacada to come in also, and if this proves practicable, the council will seriously consider the proposal.

E. H. S. Wins and Loses

In the triangle debate between Estacada, Canby and Park Rose high schools two of the debates were held in the E. H. S. auditorium last Tuesday afternoon.
The Estacada negative team, Ethel Young and Norma Randolph defeated the Park Rose affirmative team by a unanimous decision giving Estacada 4 points The Estacada affirmative team, Clyde Davis and Elizabeth Weir, were defeated by Canby's negative by a 2 to 1 decision, giving Canby 3 and Estacada 1. At the same time Canby won over Park Rose at Park Rose by a 2 to 1 decision gaining 3 points there and Park Rose 1. Thus the triangle stands Canby 6 points, Estacada 5 and Park Rose 1.

It is the policy of the Estacada high school to encourage public speaking and constructive English work as much as possible.
This has been sorely needed for a long time, and in order to enthuse the students a $25.00 prize will be given to the two best speakers in an oratorical contest to be held early in May. There will also be a $10.00 prize given for the best short story, written in a story contest which has just been decided upon.

bers are requested to meet at

HIGH SCHOOL PLAY PLEASES AUDIENCE

The playlets presented by the Estacada High School Student Body were well received by an audience which almost filled the entire auditorium Friday night.
Before each one Miss Nova Smith played an overture on the piano.
The plays were written by home talent and had the merit of being well within the scope of the performers.

The first one, "How Daddy O'Donnell Had His Way," evoked a good deal of laughter. Arthur Bowman in the title role, cleverly took off the loud voiced rancher who thinks he is boss in his home, but isn't. Melba Harmon as his meek(?) wife showed she had got his number and knew how to steer him, Pauline Rose as the elder daughter was as charming as her name, and Etta McWillis as the younger daughter with a peach bloom complexion and dancing eyes, made the role of her escort, Arnold Lovelace, an enviable one. Waldo De-Moy who was suitor for Peggy, the elder daughter, was kept on the anxious seat while her daddy vociferously expressed his objections. However the course of true love eventually ran smooth and the curtain fell on a situation which promised an early ringing of wedding bells.

The second play was of a totally different character. The rise of the curtain revealed a college professor's bedchamber, of which a couple of seniors had taken possession. The weird figure of a skeleton dressed in black stood by the bedside, while the two seniors, Ted Howe and Ralph Wade plotted to scare a freshman, Oliver Suter. He was put to sleep by being given dope, and when he woke up it was to gaze on the fiery eyes of the skeleton which scared him stiff.
But he was consoled by the appearance of an entrancing vision, Mae Smith, who tantalizingly retreated as he ran to grasp her and caused him to attempt suicide by drinking what he thought was poison but was innocuous. The piece was a good rendition of a college stunt.

The last act, "Grover's Choice," represented the dinner hour on a farm during haying and harvest. Gilbert Shearer and Mary Alice Reed took the parts of the hard working farmer and his wife, and were very much at home in them. Redfield Payne in the title role took off very ably the four flusher of a college dude who is ashamed and too lazy to work, while Walter Anderson rose to the occasion as the son who stays by and helps his father. Florence Douglass and Martha Christiansen seemed completely at ease as the neighbor girl whom the dude tries to impress and the daughter who stays at home and gets the meals.
Hotcake Harry, the hired man, played by Ervin Cadanau, was very mirth provoking with his caustic remarks on the dude as a slacker, and his table manners which with his long reach in helping himself, were the limit.
Grover's choice lay between "the lady and the pitchfork." Needless to say he selected the former.
