ANNOUNCEMENT

To the milk consuming public of Estacada: Having had many requests from friends for our Jersey milk, we have decided to deliver our milk into Estacada. For the convenience of those who want extra milk or whipping cream, we will have a supply on hand at The Estacada Meat Co.

We feel sure that our milk is unsurpassed. We have the only U. S. accredited Free Tubercular herd in this district. Our milk is aerated and cooled immediately after it is drawn, then bottled, thus removing all cow flavors and assuring a minimum bacterial growth, which lengthens the life of the milk.

During the grass season milk will be delivered for 10c per qt., and for sale at the store at 10c per qt. Whipping cream will be 15c for 1/2-half pt. and 25c per pt. GEO. LAWRENCE & SON. Springwater, Oregon.

Open House at Portland Branch

To the EDITOR:

It is our intention to hold "Open House" here at our Portland Branch during the week of April 9th to 14th, inclusive, for the purpose of acquainting the people of our territory with our plant, our organization and our product. The visitors will be taken through the plant and all the major operations explained. Great stress will be laid on the sturdy construction of the Ford products and the severity of all inspections. In addition to this they will receive an indirect selling talk which will have a strong tendency toward influencing the visitor prospect, or through him will cause a third party to be influenced to buy a Ford car sooner than otherwise.

The reopening of the Portland branch as an assembly plant means a great deal to the state of Oregon. The item of salaries alone, amounting to approximately $400,000.00 per year, practically all of which will be circulated in the state, is a large one. While it is not our intention to make capital of this, still in view of the strong "Made in Oregon" campaign being waged at this time we do not believe it out of place to advertise the fact that Ford cars and trucks are now an Oregon product.

Don't Blow Bubbles

From every part of the United States reports are virtually the same—distinct labor shortage is being felt with the real demand for labor yet to come in caring for farm crops.

What a grand thing for the country it would be if, while maintaining good times with plenty of work, we could also prevent abnormal inflation of the price of commodities or the price of labor. In other words if we could strike a happy medium that would preserve good times rather than go through another period of inflation with its ultimate outcome, namely, a cessation of buying with resulting lack of employment.

Can we not profit by the experience following the war and prevent the blowing of another bubble?—Ind. News Bureau.

Forest Protection Week

Efforts to save the forests of the country will be commemorated during the week of April 22-28, in accordance with a proclamation issued by President Harding on March 5, and just received in Portland. The idea of a special week to be devoted to forest fire prevention originated here in the Pacific Northwest in 1920, and the observance has since become nation-wide. The proclamation calls attention to the importance of forest preservation to the industrial and commercial life of the nation and to individual welfare, and points out that fires which are the result of carelessness or thoughtlessness do great damage, seriously threatening the timber supply and endangering the cover of the watersheds of streams that are used for navigation and irrigation. President Harding urges the governors of the various states to set the week apart and bring about its proper observance in the schools, through civic and other associations, by means of the press and all proper ways. In 1923 a large number of governors, and mayors of many cities proclaimed the week. This is the third year that Forest Protection Week has been fixed by presidential proclamation, and its observance has been very general in the forested regions. Last year it was combined with the fiftieth anniversary of the first Arbor Day.
