1923 Class Prophecy

We have been privileged to see the predictions made by Miss Melba Harmon, concerning the members of the class of '23.

Clyde Davis becomes a successful lawyer and retires into private life with his wife, formerly Miss Betty Weir. Waldo DeMoy sticking to his job in the bank, becomes its president, and is married to his classmate and co-worker in the bank, Miss Constance Richmond. The Rev. Theodore Howe comports himself with a dignity as becomes his cloth. Arnold Lovelace is an author and professor. Miss Gladys Miller, crossed in love, lectures to her sex on the perfidy of the male persuasion. Miss Pauline Rose is dean of the beauty department of the Estacada university. George Linglebach marries Miss Violet Marshall and raises spring chickens and a son, Harry Jr. Mrs. Walter Mattson, nee Miss Nova Smith, has two children, Bus and Nova Jr., who share in their mother's musical ability. Andy Jannsen and Marion Tucker migrate to the Texas oil fields, where the former bores a gusher on the land of the latter. Ervin D. Cadonaw stars as a comedian in Chicago, and R. Burnett as professor and lecturer in New York City. Walter F. Anderson establishes himself in Paris as a physician, and there also Miss Mae Smith is long resident and constantly in the swim in aquatic events. Last but not least, the gifted seeress foretells for herself a comfortable state of single blessedness, having made her pile as leading pianist at the Estacada opera house, and owner of the Silver Star Cafe.
