WILL OBEY DRY LAW

The foreign nations will obey the dry law as interpreted by the U. S. Supreme Court, which forbids ships bringing liquor within the three mile shore limit, except for medical and sacramental uses. This will cause a great deal of trouble to foreign shipping lines, especially to those whose national laws command that the crews be served daily with a specified allowance of wine. Protests have been made by these countries and the treasury officials acknowledge that it is a hardship, but there can be no relief except through congress. It is probable some way out of the difficulty will be afforded later on. Heretofore ships flying a foreign flag have been regarded as foreign territory when in ports of other countries. This may be a legal fiction but it has been justified on the ground of convenience.

A foreigner temporarily sojourning in this country, is exempted from certain laws such as jury duty or a draft law. Foreign ships engaged in inter ocean transportation should not be compelled to unload their liquor supplies before entering the three mile limit, but to keep them under seal while in these waters. This was the method adopted formerly in inter-state travel. When a train entered a state which was dry, all liquors in the dining cars were placed under seal, and none sold until the train entered again wet territory. As to allowing the crews of foreign ships their allowance of wine, this might be permitted, but it would have to be strictly consumed on board the ship, and only by those whose national laws entitle them to this ration. If this privilege should be abused then it should be revoked. The U. S. has no interest in interfering unduly with the customs belonging to other nations.

INTERESTING IF TRUE.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in his lecture Friday night in the Auditorium at Portland, described death as an enchanting experience, and drew a very attractive picture of post mortem conditions and experiences. But in spite of what he may say, people will cling to this life even though it is full of troubles, for "the dread of something after death—The undiscovered country from whose bourne No traveller returns,—puzzles the will." Sir Arthur remained over Saturday in Portland to attend a seance by a local woman who has attracted attention as a notable medium. In this seance he claims to have had a long conversation with his son Barber who was killed in France. And not only this, but with his first wife, the mother of his son Barber. Both voices of son and mother were heard by those present. The first Mrs. Doyle spoke affectionately of her former husband's present family and showed no jealousy of his second wife. Among other things she said, no one was obliged to read the Bible over there because everything was an open book.

The social service departments of nearly all the Protetant bodies, the Roman Catholic and Jewish churches, have united in a protest against the 12 hour work day, as advocated by Judge Gary of the United States Steel corporation. They condemn it as subversive of the healthy moral and physical conditions of the workers. Such a protest is bound to be effective.

We wonder what those republicans think who voted for Governor Pierce last election, at his building up a democratic machine. It was what might have been expected and if they do not like it, they should not complain.

A Request

The Pacific Coast Rescue and Protective Society requests its friends to remember the girls of the Louise Home and the babies of the Albertina Kerr Nursery Home when canning fruit and vegetables this year.

The Louise Home and the Albertina Kerr Nursery cared for last year respectively one hundred and forty-four unfortunate girls and one hundred and eighty-two homeless babies and youngsters. The babies and girls were committed from twenty-eight counties of the state.

Please send a note stating how many jars you will fill so that the freight may be prepaid and arrangements made to pay the freight for the return of the fruit. The note should be addressed to the general office, 195 Burnside street, Portland, Ore.

The Garfield ladies Dorcas Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Minnie Eash, Thursday, June 21.
 MRS. KATIE M. TRAPP, Sec.

Two Made One

On Friday afternoon, June 8, 1923, at 5:30, Miss Melba Marie Harmon was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony to Lorne V. Cleworth. The ceremony was performed by Bishop W. Shephard of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who is an old friend of the groom's family, at his residence, 1139 Franklyn street, Portland.

The bride, who was attended by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Harmon of Garfield, was becomingly attired in a gown of silver lace over blue silk.

In the evening a reception was given in their honor by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Glenn Harmon, 7125, Fifty third Avenue, Portland, after which the newly-weds departed amid a show of rice and old shoes, for a short trip to the coast, and then they will return to Estacada.

No doubt a warm reception will be accorded to them by their many friends on their return. Both are popular, the bride having been graduated this year from the Estacada high school, and the groom was for two years instructor of manual training in the same institution, but for the past year manager of the Gem theatre and proprietor of the Silver Star cafe.

The NEWS extends the heartiest congratulations and best wishes to them for their future journey together on the sea of matrimony.

Wedding Bells

Miss Olga Eshelman became the bride of George Brown at a pretty wedding, Wednesday, June 6, 1923, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Swart of Salem, Oregon. Miss Melba Robinson and Carl Wenger were attendants. A Little Beverly Swart in pink organdy was flower girl. Miss Robinson wore blue organdy.

The bride was gowned in white canton crepe with a long veil and carried Celia Bruner roses. Rev. J. J. Evans officiated. Miss Trista Wenger sang, "I Love You Truly," and Miss Naomi Whalen played a violin obligato, with Ruth Swart at the piano.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by an orchestra composed of Martha Swart, cornet; Hedda Swart, clarinet; Ruth Swart, piano; Renska Swart and Naomi Whalen, violins.

An improvised altar was effectively decorated with flowers and foliage, carrying out the color scheme of pink, white and green.

A wedding supper was served later at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Brown.

The bride is the daughter of the late Ray Eshelman, brother of Dave Eshelman of Estacada, and also the niece of Jim Abbott who attended the wedding.

STATE MARKET AGENT DEPARTMENT.

A Willamette valley farmer gives a striking illustration of results of grading, in a letter to this office.

He has about 200 hens. He shipped two cases of eggs to a commission house in Portland, filling the cases as the eggs came from the nests. He received 21 cents a dozen for the two cases, $12.60.

The following week he packed the small, dirty and misshapen eggs together in one end of a crate and labeled the rest of the eggs as graded "white henneries". Result, 45 dozen of graded eggs he received 24 cents per dozen for, and 21 cents per dozen for the 15 dozen culls—a total of $13.95 as against $12.60 the week before, at same market price. The difference in price in these two shipments would have meant success or failure of a commercial egg plant on a large scale.

The main features of the new state market law for improving marketing conditions are cooperative organizations and standardizing, labeling and grading of products.

California is showing the world what may be done along these lines. It has 33 cooperative organizations, controlling from 30 to 90 per cent of the different products, and the producers are a predominant power in fixing the selling prices of their products. The products are graded and standardized and the labels and brands are becoming recognized over the nation.

Washington is following California's lead with 16 producer's organizations, while Oregon has but 8, none of which is strong enough to have very much influence on market prices.

The Oregon market law gives broad powers to the State Market agent in defining his duties. He is empowered to help organize producers' and consumers' organizations and work with them along the lines of markets, distribution, standards, grades, labels, etc.

An organization controlling but ten per cent of a product, would have very little to say about its selling price, but if that association controlled 80 per cent of production of the product it would dominate the market to the extent of a fair price to the growers. And the same power of organization, through its distributing agencies, could eliminate much "middle men" profit and expense and lessen the cost to the consumer.

The legislature clearly contemplated these results in the market agent law, but it is entirely up to producers to take the first steps—organization. The State Market Agent department stands ready to assist in every way at its command to help organize cooperative associations or build up those already organized, to better the conditions of the producers and consumers of Oregon.
 —Market Agent.
