HE THAT TRUSTETH IN HIS OWN HEART IS A FOOL.—Prov. 28:26.

EVOLUTION OF A SOUL

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which was shown here last week, might well be termed "The Evolution of a Soul." The hunchback, Quasimodo, at the beginning of the story, has a soul as dwarfed, distorted and bestial as his repulsive body, an ape-like soul in an ape-like body. If anything he was then lower than the ape. As such he was ready to be the tool of those who sought the abduction of the gipsy girl, Esmeralda. But low as he was, sordid and brutal, animated only by passions of hate and animal desires, yet his soul retained a latent spark of manhood which was capable of being fanned to a blaze.

This was furnished when in torture from the cruel lash, exposed to the contumely and jeers of a callous, mocking crowd, and dying from an intense thirst, his victim passing by, took compassion on him, and brought him the reviving draught of water to slake his thirst, and covered up his wounded back with the clothing which had been torn from him.

Thus the breath of womanly pity penetrated the recesses of his soul, and stirred the manhood, kindling love within him which was slowly to burn out the vile and base, cleansing his soul from all impurities.

At length love obtains the mastery, and he is able through love to rise to the height of self sacrifice for the sake of his beloved, and to rejoice to lose his life so that her happiness was secured.

As he lay prone in the final struggle his emancipated soul could almost be seen sloughing off its malformed shell and rising toward the empyrean, where a new perfect, upright body would clothe the perfected, upright man, a noble body for a noble man.

A COLOSSAL FRAUD

The Dimick defalcations mount up steadily each day until they are now reported at about a half million dollars. At first thought we were inclined to think that being financially pinched he yielded to temptation to misappropriate funds to save the day, and thus became entangled in a financial web which gradually extended, as he was forced to rob Peter to pay Paul, hoping eventually to straighten out matters.

But it is worse than this. It seems nothing less than cold blooded, deliberate fraud to enrich himself. No one was spared, even his wife and closest friends and relatives were his victims. But the wonder is, how could a man carry on such speculations undetected for so long a period, extending over years? What a nerve he must have had. He could never know but at any moment a slip of the pen, a careless word might give him away. It matters little how much he took away with him. Ill gotten gains never prosper, and besides, "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

Tomorrow is election day, to make choice of candidates of both parties for the fall political race. If you want your candidate to be nominated be sure and do your part, otherwise you can have no reason to kick if the other fellow gets in. Don't let General Apathy be in command that day.

Give your preference if you can conscientiously, to candidates from the eastern part of the county.

A NEW WEEKLY

The Benton Independent is the latest star appearing in the Oregon journalistic firmament. Judging from its initial issue, it promises to become one of no small magnitude. The publisher is Arthur W. Lawrence who has been a state legislator and a printer, and the editor is Don C. Wilson. We extend to both our hearty congratulations and best wishes, and gladly add it to our exchange list.

The iceman is saying to himself, with apologies to William Shakespeare, "Now is the winter of our discontent Made glorious summer by this sun of Oregon."

Corrections

We call attention to the corrections in two political advertisements: W. B. Cook of Oswego is candidate for county assessor and not for commissioner. W. C. Hawley is candidate for congressman and not for commissioner. We tender our sincere apologies to both these gentlemen.

76th Milestone

The seventy-sixth birthday anniversary of Mrs. David Huggans was celebrated at her home at Eagle Creek. A lovely dinner was served in the form of a surprise. Those enjoying the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. David Huggans, Mrs. W. H. Smith and grandson of Parkplace, Mrs. L. M. Hogan and Mr. Henry Woods of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. Esland Lindholm of Sandy, Mrs. J. W. Huggans and children, Mrs. Rose Westerman of Eagle Creek, and Mrs. Frank Gilman and son of Parkplace. A centerpiece of a blooming Christmas cactus was rather an odd feature of the day.

U. S. EXPERTS LEAD WAR ON FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

This is Dr. U. G. Houck of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, (left) who has been placed by Secretary Wallace in complete command of the fight being effectively waged on the foot and mouth disease outbreak in California, and G. H. Hecke, director Department of Agriculture, State of California, who is assisting Dr. Houck in quickly and permanently stamping out the epidemic.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—The full force of the United States government has been brought into play effectively against the foot and mouth disease in California. The disease has been confined to certain limited districts in the state and the work of stamping it out is proceeding rigorously under the direction of Dr. U. G. Houck, personal Representative of Secretary Wallace, department of agriculture, who has complete control of the combined federal and state forces.

"Every method justified by our past experience and by scientific study is being used to prevent any possibility of spread of the disease and to wipe it out so thoroughly that there will be no chance of its recurrence," said Dr. Houck. "There is no danger of spread of the disease through shipment of fruits, vegetables or dairy products from the great non-infected areas of California. We know of no instance where the disease has been carried by such shipments," Dr. Houck said. Complete confidence in the men in the field was expressed by Dr. J. R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, in a message he has just sent to Dr. Houck and the local federal inspectors. "We have in California," he said, "the best equipped force of inspectors that was ever assembled on a foot and mouth detail. Our methods are not experimental, but have been weighed in the balance of practical experience and have always produced the desired results."
