ESTACADA WINS FROM SELLWOOD

Estacada opened the 1924 baseball season on the local grounds last Sunday by winning from the Sellwood Athletic Club team by a score of 6 to 2.

Considering that the local team was somewhat of an experiment and entirely without practice, the showing made was exceptionally good. With a little strengthening and one or two more games the team should give a good account of itself.

Jack Smith took the mound for the locals, but threw his arm out in the first inning and Bronson went in. Bronson pitched bangup good ball and deserved the victory. The game was really won by George Smith and thereby hangs a tale: George vowed he would not play ball this season and was not in the lineup or even in the grounds when the game started, but showed up about the second inning. He fought bravely for about ten minutes but the "call of the wild" was too much and in the last half of the third with two out and three on who should walk to the "rubber" but George with his trusty willow. Need more be said? A two-bagger was needed and a two-bagger we got. This was rather confusing to the Sellwood boys and when the dust had settled the bases were clear, George himself having made the entire circuit, and the four runs thus netted were enough to cinch the game.

Coolidge to Press Button

President Coolidge will start by pressing a button, the waters plunging through the giant turbine of the first unit of the $20,000,000 Oak Grove project, that will be formally dedicated early in August.

This initial unit will have a capacity of 35,000 horsepower, while the ultimate capacity of the completed project will be 105,000 horsepower. A feature of unusual interest in the completion of this unit, lies in the fact that its power will be fed into the great superpower transmission system now extending from British Columbia to the Mexican border, which is the longest inter-connected power transmission in the world.

Monday they plead guilty and were sentenced to six months in jail and to pay a $1,000 fine. With the still which was made out of a wash boiler, the officers found 120 gallons of mash.

STUDENT SAFETY OFFICERS PICNIC

Three hundred student safety officers of the Portland grammar schools spent Saturday here on a picnic given by Portland officials of the national safety council. The picnic, an annual affair, was the second given for the student officers.

The school representatives left Portland early on a train furnished by the Portland Electric Power Co. The morning was spent in general picnicking and the afternoon was devoted to races, athletics and a baseball game. Teams were chosen, that were named "Whitney" and "Rice" for school officials. The Rice nine won, 5 to 4.

Although the students are those delegated in each school to have charge of safety measures, no business was considered. Those on the trip provided their own lunches.

Officials of the safety council who accompanied the boys were: B. F. Boynton, vice-president of the national council; Hugh H. Herdman, manager of the organization's local activities, and H. P. Coffin, in charge of the work of the schools. Several principals and teachers made the trip.
