Freshmen at the O. A. C.

Freshmen entering the Oregon Agricultural college are expected to arrive on the campus Monday, September 22, in order to begin the real work of "freshman week" Tuesday morning. Three days will be spent by the first year students in receiving instruction in all phases of college life, getting acquainted with faculty members, and becoming familiar with the campus and the customs and traditions of the college.

Registration of freshmen will take place Friday, September 26. Students who have formerly attended the college will register Saturday, September 27. None but new students are expected to be on the campus by that date. By agreement among fraternities and sororities there will be no rushing or pledging until after the close of freshman week.

After preliminary registration Tuesday morning, prospective students in each school will be divided into groups of 15, each led by a faculty member who will have special charge of the group for the week. A classificatory examination in English will be given all freshmen. An informal assembly will "break the ice" and a faculty reception to freshmen will close the first day's program.

Wednesday and Thursday will be largely devoted to study of the following subjects: "College Community Relations," "Budgeting," "Student Activities," "Meeting Expense," "How to Study," "College Regulations," "College Traditions," and "Keeping Fit."

An address by Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of the college, and separate meetings of men and women with Dr. U. G. Dubach, dean of men, and Mrs. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women, will be features. A tour of the campus and a social affair for the whole class are also planned.
