MOON AND OCEAN

"Hello, Mother Ocean," said Mr. Moon.
"Hello, Mr. Moon," said Mother Ocean.
"I've come over here to call upon you," said Mr. Moon.
"You're all dressed up in your full evening clothes," said Mother Ocean.
"Of course," said Mr. Moon, "I want to dress up in my very best to come and call on you."
"Oh, that is splendid, that is a great compliment," said Mother Ocean in her deep, low voice.
"Yes," continued Mr. Moon, "I was talking about it up in the sky and I said:
"Sky friends, I am going a-calling upon dear old Mother Ocean tonight."
"I want to look down upon her and talk to her and maybe she will let me have my picture taken in her beautiful ocean picture gallery. I would like her to have one. I don't want it myself."
"She could show it to a few friends and then she could destroy it."
"So, Sky friends, I want to look my best."
"You will wear your best evening clothes then, won't you?" my Sky friends asked me.
"And I told them that of course I would do this."
"Well, it is splendid to see you," said Mother Ocean. "You look so silvery and so handsome."
"Ah yes," said Mr. Moon, "I spoke to the Sky Jewels before I came out this evening and I said to them:
"I should like to wear some gleaming silver which will shine beautifully as I am calling on Mother Ocean tonight."
"So they decked me forth with silver trimmings and that is why I look so silvery."
Mr. Moon looked down upon Mother Ocean and now he was reflected in the ocean—or, as he said, his picture was being taken.
And there were most beautiful silvery lights in the ocean, too, as the Ocean Photographer was showing up all Mr. Moon's silver jewels and finery.
After a time the waves came out to see what was happening and they seized some of Mr. Moon's silver which he had sent down to the ocean. He did not mind. He wanted them to do this.

Then the tide which was coming in asked for some silver, too, so it could deck itself with silver as it went up, back and forth upon the beach.

Oh, what a silvery ocean there was that night. And Mother Ocean murmured words of happiness about her splendid visitor.

Mr. Moon was at his best. Never had he looked so handsome and so fine. He looked magnificent.

"Today," said Mother Ocean, "my wave children dressed in their blue play dresses, and later they dressed up in their blue and purple and green and wore caps of blue and white."

"The sky cloud mountains looked at the children and spoke of how beautifully gay and rough they were!"
"But tonight they are quiet and beautiful and still."

Then some people came down to Mother Ocean and they went in bathing in the silvery water and in the moonlight. And Mother Ocean said:

"My children aren't the only ones to play and to frolic! But how they are admiring you, Mr. Moon."

Mr. Moon smiled and answered:
"But I dressed in my best for you and not for them, Mother Ocean."

Would Have the Club

Helen's mother is an enthusiastic club woman. On the little girl's fifth birthday it was decided she should have a party to which five children should be invited.

The numerical appropriateness of this was not lost upon Helen.
The next day she divulged to a caller social plans reaching far into the future.

"I'm going to have a party tomorrow. I'm going to have five children 'cause I'm five years old. Next year I'll be six and I'll have six children."

"And the next year?" queried the amused caller.

Helen looked thoughtful. Then she replied: "Oh, next year I think I shall have the club."

Feeding frozen kale or cabbage leaves is unwise, says the Oregon experiment station. It is best to thaw out the leaves by dipping in water.

COMMUNITY CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Eastern Clackamas Community Club was held Friday, Dec. 26 at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium. After the regular business had been completed reports were given by two committees. The communications received were considered and a motion was made and carried that the organization affiliate with the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce again this year.

The matter of publicity was again discussed and A. Feyerabend was appointed to take up the proposition as outlined by the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

Two films showing many of the interesting things of Yellowstone National Park were shown by the courtesy of the Northern Pacific Railway System.

W. W. Williams of Ridgefield, Wash., was present and spoke on the need and purpose of a community club. Several years ago Mr. Williams helped to organize this club.

H. C. Stephens reviewed briefly the important things done by this club since it has been in existence.

The talks on game conservation were postponed until a later date.

FARM REMINDERS

Chopped alfalfa or clover hay soaked in warm water may be used as a substitute for the most succulent green feeds for poultry. Nothing else will throw the pullets off production quite so quickly as the absence of green feed, says the O. A. C. extension station.

Even stands, less disease, fewer weeds, less dockage, better grades and bigger crops and more, are some of the advantages of clean seed. One O. A. C. experiment station field yielded 49.8 bushels from cleaned seed, and under like conditions otherwise only 42.2 bushels from thresher run seed. The seed testing laboratory at Corvallis will test your seed.

Mangels and roots may be used to good advantage as green feed for the laying flock, advises the state college experiment station. It may be necessary to educate the birds into eating them. It is important to not run short of green feed.

Home Is Entered

Last Sunday evening while Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Marshall were attending church services in Estacada their home was entered by someone using a pass key and a revolver which Mr. Marshall had recently purchased was taken.

Fortunately the thieves overlooked another gun.

It is understood that Mr. Marshall has information as to the thieves and step may be taken to bring about their apprehension at any time.

Bright Outlook for Sheep

The sheep industry presents one of the bright spots in the present agricultural outlook, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The number of sheep in the United States has been increased for two years, but is still far from being back at wartime or pre-war figures.

The United States produces only about 10 per cent of the world's total wool crop, but consumes 25 per cent of it. World carry-over stocks of wool have been shrinking for four years and are now low. World production last year was 66 million pounds below the previous year.

The prices of both wool and lambs have been strong the past two years and the outlook for reasonable profits in sheep is excellent for several years to come.
