POPULATION INCREASES

Portland, Oregon, April 22nd—(Special)—More than 700 new families representing an investment in excess of $2,000,000, have been located in Oregon during the past year through the efforts of the Land Settlement Department of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, according to a report completed by W. G. Ide, manager of the department, for presentation at the annual meeting of the Portland Chamber, April 24th.

During the same period, the number of agricultural inquiries totaled more than 15,000, of whom 1087 prospective settlers have definitely announced their intention of coming to Oregon this year. The report stresses particularly the active co-operation received by the land settlement department from a majority of the counties of the state, and calls attention to the large volume of inquiries received in recent months. During March for example, more than 4700 requests for agricultural information were received, and these inquiries have been relayed to all Chambers of Commerce in the state.

Notables to attend the meeting include Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway Company; Carl Gray, president Union Pacific; Charles Donnelly, president, Northern Pacific, and John Perring, chairman of the Board of the Federal Bank of San Francisco.

NO CHANCE FOR GROUCHES

Seafaring folk, who have in the past made fun of the seamanship displayed in motion pictures of the sea, will have little chance to crab at Thomas Meighan's "Pied Piper Malone." The action takes place at Kennebunkport, summer home town of the picture's author, Booth Tarkington, and all the extra roles are played by men who were fairly born with oars in their hands. Moreover, Meighan and his fellow players underwent an intensive course in seamanship before setting foot on the deck of the ship in which much of the action takes place.

Meighan has the role of a sea-going man who is beloved by all the children in town, but who is falsely accused an dcomes under a cloud. Naturally the ending is a happy one, but not till after Tom has undergone some thrilling, emotional and physical adventures.

"Pied Piper Malone," which is a Paramount picture, will be the attraction at the Gem Theatre next Saturday and Sunday, April 25 and 26.

Harry Kitching was a Portland visitor last Monday.

HATCHERY UNDER EFFICIENT MANAGER

The Delph Creek hatchery located about six miles from Estacada is perhaps one of the most beautifully planned and laid out hatcheries in the state of Oregon. Nature has been lavish with her native resources and J. C. Moreland, the present supervisor, has spared no efforts in making it as attractive as possible without destroying any of the natural beauty. There are nine ponds in which fish are kept, Delph creek amply feeds these ponds with the necessary fresh water for the thousands of fish raised at this place.

Nestled in a little valley made by this beautiful stream, the building in which the trout are hatched is located and near by are the various ponds in which the small fry are reared to maturity or allowed to remain until they are ready to be transplanted to the various streams of this community.

The life history of a trout is extremely interesting. It takes an average of forty days to hatch a trout egg. This is estimated by the number of units of heat required to do this. For example a unit of heat is one degree above freezing and if the temperature of the water is kept at forty-two degrees this will supply ten units of heat daily. At the end of forty days the young fish begins to show signs of life and in a short time is transported from the place of hatching to another larger body of water where it is allowed to remain for some time before being placed in one of the out of door ponds.

Mr. Moreland has on hand a large number of fresh water shrimp which he is propagating for planting in the land locked lakes in this vicinity to supply food for the fish found there. These have been imported from Utah and is an experiment in this part of the state in providing fish food for the fish inhabiting those land locked waters.

Fish of various sizes may be seen at this hatchery located, so to speak, in our very dooryard. The sportsmen of this portion of Clackamas county should be particularly interested in this hatchery and we believe that a live organization of such persons could do much in broadening the scope of this hatchery's work in the propagation of fish for the stocking of the many streams of this county.

J. A. C. STUDENTS

MAKE FAST RECORD

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Apr. 23—Royce Clayton of Estacada, sophomore in commerce, was a member of the Beaver four-mile relay team which outclassed a fleet field in the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Kan., only half a day after getting off the train and later won the Loyola relays at Chicago by a quarter of a mile.

The Beaver time at Lawrence was 18:07.8, three seconds faster than Illinois made in winning the four-mile event at Drake last year. In taking the race from Texas A. and M., which was second, the O. A. C. team broke the Kansas record.

Some good time is expected of the O. A. C. men at the Drake meet. They ran at Kansas while they were still stiff from their long trip from the Pacific coast. With a week in which to rest and gradually limber up, they may better their time of last week.
