COUNTY ORGANIZATION HOLDS SESSION HERE

Seven communities were represented last Friday evening at a meeting called by President A. G. Ames of the Eastern Clackamas Community club for the purpose of considering a county-wide organization of the various clubs for the betterment of Clackamas county.

About 25 persons, representing Oregon City, Molalla, Colton, Walluga, Oswego, Milwaukie and Estacada, gathered in the pretty dining room of the Estacada hotel where Mine Host Moore and his capable assistants served one of those delightful dinners for which the Estacada is noted.

Following the dinner various members representing the communities were asked to voice their opinions in regard to the matter at hand. Gordon J. Taylor, editor of the Molalla Pioneer of Molalla, stated that he felt this was a means of developing Clackamas county and that the best way to "sell" this county to outsiders was to "sell" it to ourselves. The work of such an organization should be to acquaint people with the problems of the county. He urged that class feeling be kept out of such an organization, that the social side be stressed to develop a wholesome spirit of good fellowship throughout the county.

H. H. Chindgren of Colton, representing the Farm Bureau, stated that his bureau was always ready and willing to co-operate with other business interests for the development of the county. He said that such an organization should support and foster the county fair and finance a county exhibit at the annual state fairs.

R. C. Cooke, editor of the Western Clackamas Review of Oswego, was of the opinion that the proposed consolidation of interests would have a tendency to bring about a much better understanding of community problems.

M. S. Schrock of Milwaukie told of the work done in his community by their recently organized Community club and announced that he was heartily in favor of such a county institution.

Following the various expressions of those present, E. A. Koen of Oregon City moved that a temporary organization be formed and that a temporary chairman and secretary be elected. Motion carried. It was later moved that each community represented at this meeting be allowed to elect one delegate as member of a committee to plan for a permanent organization. The following were named:

A. G. Ames of Estacada, temporary chairman, and E. A. Koen of Oregon City temporary secretary, members of the committee being H. H. Chindgren, Colton; E. L. Lucas, Walluga; G. J. Taylor, Molalla; M. S. Schrock, Milwaukie; E. A. Koen, Oregon City; G. P. Schlosser, Oswego, and H. C. Stephens, Estacada.

The name selected for the organization was: Greater Clackamas Union of Clubs.

The committee on permanent organization will meet in Oregon City Tuesday evening, September 15, at the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the purpose of preparing a report to be submitted to the first big meeting of those interested, which will be held Friday evening, September 25, at the county fair grounds at Canby, at which time the permanent organization will be effected.

SPECIAL GRANGE MEETING

Springwater Grange will hold a special meeting Saturday at 1:30 p. m. to complete plans for the fair program September 18th. Everyone interested in the fair, whether a Grange member or not, is requested to attend and assist in making it a success.

Clackamas county is coming to the front as the greatest agricultural county in the state. Let us see to it that Eastern Clackamas takes the lead—where it belongs.

STANDING OF CONTESTANTS

According to the report of the committee the standing of the candidates for queen at the Labor Day celebration was:

Wilma Kitching	153
Edna Bates	235
Edith Hewell	20
Edna Carter	5

Gertrude Fink requested that her name be withdrawn from the list.

John Hoffmann of Barton was in Estacada last Tuesday on business.

OUR FUTURE SUPPLY OF OIL

Anyone who is concerned about the future security of the country, in peace or in war, or of the supply of petroleum products is concerned, will find material reassurance in a report which has just been published by a committee of 11 members of the board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute. The report indicates there is no cause for alarm.

Early in 1924 President Coolidge appointed the federal oil conservation board, consisting of four members of his cabinet, to make a study of the future supply of petroleum in the United States. In consequence of the president's action the board of directors of the American Petroleum institute appointed a committee to make a report on the future supply of and demand for petroleum. The committee, enlisting the co-operation of experts in oil and of numerous authorities outside the industry, conducted an investigation which has taken six months to complete. The report is probably the most thorough study of the oil industry that has ever been made.

Predictions of failure of the American supply of oil have been made almost from the beginning of the oil industry. All have proved fallacious. When the production of oil fields has dropped off the oil industry has found new fields.

Oil is a hidden resource. Without actual drilling there is no way of telling where it lies, nor how much of it there is. It must be sought and discovered. There are, however, sound facts on which to base an estimate of how much oil existing fields will yield through present methods of pumping and flowing. The report fixes the figure at five billion, three hundred million barrels. And the estimate is made that after the present fields cease to produce there will remain in the ground, unrecoverable by pumping or flowing 26 billion barrels of oil, a large portion of which may be recovered through new, but known, methods, such as flooding with water, the use of air or gas pressure to force the oil out, or mining. Altogether this comprises a considerable quantity of oil "in sight." But the major reserves of the nation lie in an area of more than a billion unexplored acres of land in the United States which are geologically favorable to the presence of oil. Here new fields are to be discovered. Then there are imports, particularly from South America, which will relieve the strain on the American reserves. And when, if ever, the supply of petroleum falls, the nation has huge deposits of oil shale, coal and lignite from all of which liquid fuel and lubricants can be obtained in such vast quantities as to present an aspect of unlimited supply, which will be drawn upon as price of products justifies development.

The report draws particular attention to two impending developments of very great importance. One is the extension within the industry of "cracking" crude oil, a process which increases the yield of the all important gasoline. The other is a change in motor construction which roughly speaking, will double the mileage of the automobile per gallon of gasoline. Herein is true conservation.

Altogether, the findings of the committee are reassuring. There may be passing periods of shortage of petroleum, but there is no danger in the situation.

BAND BENEFIT DANCE

The Eastern Clackamas band will give a benefit dance at the Estacada park pavilion Saturday evening, August 29. Good orchestra music will be furnished. Admission $1.00.

Glenn and children, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bodkin and son, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Houko and Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilhelm and daughter of Portland and Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Delap and children of Turlock, California.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith and Mrs. Lillie Miesler of Stayton came down Tuesday for a visit with friends and relatives here. Mrs. Elsie Potter of Klamath Falls, a school class of Mrs. Smith, came out for a short visit with her last Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Womer and daughter of Corvallis spent the week-end with relatives in Estacada.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS

We have used our own arguments as best we could to induce advertisers get their change of copy into the office at an early hour in the week, to the end that we might have more time in which to make a newspaper, with the accent on the news. Now we come with a statement from a lady who happened to call during the week. She told of having seen advertised an article which she had contemplated buying. It was a "leader" in one of the Estacada store advertisements—but, because of tardiness on the part of the ad. writer for The News, holding the paper off the press until we could get his ad. in type, the sale of this particular article was lost to at least one customer—and there may have been many who would have taken advantage of the merchant's offer.

Papers dated Thursday should be in the hands of their readers on that day. Hereafter the Eastern Clackamas News will go out Thursday morning to the various postoffices on its mailing list and it behooves our advertisers to aid us in helping them realize their advertisements. They must co-operate with us by having changes in our hands not later than Monday noon—that is to say, The News forms will close on display advertising Monday noon.

A newspaper in localities like Estacada are read more for the news items than for the editorials. It is a physical impossibility to set up local news items when the ad. copy book is crowded. Unless we can have the two days immediately preceding publication day for setting news, arranging for printing and mailing our advertisers are not getting the kind of a paper they deserve and which will be of benefit to them.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES

Mrs. Sarah F. Hassell, a resident of Roseburg for the past 37 years, and well known in this community having resided in the Logan community for a number of years and in this city for about a year, died in Roseburg last Friday morning about three o'clock at the apartments of her daughter, Mrs. Percy A. Webb, with whom she had resided for the last six months.

Mrs. Hassell had been ill for some time, being bedfast for the last two weeks, until her illness culminated in death last Friday. She was born at Binghamton, New York, August 1, 1842, coming to Oregon from that place 54 years ago. She made her home in Roseburg for many years, later moving to Estacada where she resided for a number of years. Recently she returned to Roseburg and as since resided there with her daughter. Mrs. Hassell was a constant Christian since early girlhood and was a woman of sterling character, endearing herself to all who came to meet her.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Percy A. Webb, of Roseburg, two sons, John and Albert of Estacada and one sister, Mrs. Mary Tracey, of Portland. She leaves many friends both in Estacada and Roseburg who were grieved to learn of her passing.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Roseburg undertaking chapel. Rev. H. F. Low of the Christian church officiated, with interment taking place in the Odd Fellows' cemetery there.

IMPRESSIONS OF RECENT VISITOR

Oh, wad th' griffie gie us to see oursel's as ithers see us.—Burns.

At Home, Aug. 20.—Editor News, Estacada: While visiting your pretty little city, the while enjoying the wonderful scenery surrounding it and whipping the streams, I was very much impressed and promised my host I would put my impressions on paper and submit them.

I have visited a number of the smaller cities of Oregon, and in fact have spent the greater part of my life in these in other states, but none of them impressed me as has Estacada. Its location is positively charming, and the people are of the very best—sociable and enterprising. There isn't a dead stick among 'em, if I may be permitted to use a crude simile. The two new business now in process of erection, as well as those recently constructed, prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that Estacada people believe in the future of their town.

But the most impressive thing in and around Estacada in comparison with other localities is the moral cleanliness of the youth. Manhood and womanhood have naught to fear from the rising generation there. My occupation—the highbrows call it a profession—has taught me to observe and retain mental pictures of everything I see, and one of the brightest pictures in memory's casket will be the youth of Estacada.

In the average small town and at the meeting places in the country the young men will stand in groups and oggle the young ladies as they pass, dropping insinuating remarks, while all too many girls will giggle and smirk at them. Not so in Estacada. Evening after evening as I strolled along the street I actually marveled at the gentlemanly behavior of your boys and the gentleness of the young ladies, for not once in the more than a fortnight spent in your little city did I observe any of the things that tend to weaken our future.

I read in the current number of The News that there is an effort being made to coerce your city council into enacting restrictive laws to (mis)govern your youth. "Make haste slowly," good people of Estacada. You have the finest type of youth to be found anywhere on this terrestrial sphere. This happy condition is not the result of restrictive laws and fines—it is rather the companionship of real fathers and real mothers. Let not those who have never felt the touch of baby fingers, nor watched the budding of youth into full blown rose of American manhood and womanhood, imagine they can legislate these young people into the City Everlasting. Play with them. Make of them your companions. Let your hearts be as young as theirs. Look at life from their viewpoint. Do not drive them away to other towns and communities by irksome restraint. Youth is youth. You cannot—you should not desire to—dampen its ardor. Let the rich young blood flow. Instead of damming the stream that it may overflow and become polluted, simply keep the waters free from contamination.

It isn't the things we intend to do, Nor the labor we've just begun, That puts us right on the ledger sheet—

It's the things we've really done. Our credit is built on things we do; Our debit on things we shirk— But the man who totals the biggest plus

Is the man who completes his work. Good intentions do not pay bills. 'Tis easy enough to plan; To wish is the job of an office boy. To do is the work of a man.

HAVE A PRUNE

Why not have a Prune Advertising campaign for Estacada, and everybody send their friends a box of fresh prunes? I will gladly pack and send the fruit at a nominal cost. The crop is short and the grade exceptionally good, thus giving our friends an opportunity to see what we raise in Estacada district.

(Signed) J. G. HAYMAN

LAW EFFECTIVE SEPT. 1

Certain people have challenged the new law relative to automobile lights which becomes effective September 1. The outcome of any legal action is still a matter of doubt. The state will enforce its laws. The people will uphold all laws that tend for the betterment of auto lighting conditions. The car owners who take their cars to a recognized light-testing station will find that they are benefited by the changes made.

These stations are now trying to give this service with the least possible expense. We feel that although there may be some points on which we do not agree, the fact is that some good will come from the law. If the results are beneficial to one they will prove beneficial to all. The secretary of state has sent out copies of this law and it would be well for all car owners to inform themselves as to its provisions.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lins spent Sunday at the home of Mr. Lins' sister, Mrs. A. Kroener, and family at Milwaukie.

The News is only $1.50 per year.
