OREGON NEWS ITEMS OF SPECIAL INTEREST

Brief Resume of Happenings of the Week Collected for Our Readers.

More than 200 youngsters are enrolled in boys' and girls' club work in Union county this year.

Work has been started on pouring the foundation for the new $300,000 hotel of nine stories at Marshfield.

Mrs. M. J. Olds, 88, a pioneer of Oregon in 1846, died at McMinnville after an illness of more than a year.

Dedication of the new Elks' temple at Salem has been set for November 7. The temple cost approximately $175,000.

With the regular registration completed at Willamette university at Salem, the enrollment has reached only 460, a decrease of nearly 150 from last year.

The timber on six tracts in Multnomah, Benton, Polk, Clackamas and Washington counties was sold by the government last week for an aggregate of $50,548.45.

Thomas B. Kay, state treasurer, was elected president of the Oregon Linen Mills, which was incorporated at Salem recently with capital stock of approximately $600,000.

Recent hail storms damaged the Cove prune crop so badly that work has been curtailed and the prunes will be either dried in the Cove dryer or else sent to canneries.

A good start is being made in moving the Oregon onion crop, about 50 cars having been shipped out already. The state will have a good crop estimated at around 700 cars.

The public service commission has authorized discontinuance of station facilities at Quinton, on the line of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company in Gilliam county.

An attractive young woman, fashionably dressed and with polished manners, fleeced Klamath merchants out of a considerable quantity of merchandise by means of forged checks.

One hundred and six mills reporting to the West Coast Lumbermen's association for the week ending September 19, manufactured 101,871,766 feet of lumber and sold 109,342,532 feet.

Forty-three of the 61 applicants who took the state bar examinations held in Salem last July were successful, according to announcement by Arthur S. Benson, clerk of the state supreme court.

Indorsement of the Oregon Trunk's proposed extension from Bend to Klamath Falls was urged by the Klamath county chamber of commerce railroad committee in a report recently made public.

Mistaken for a deer, Henry Alvin Boyce, auto mechanic of Corvallis, was shot and instantly killed on Klickitat mountain, approximately 11 miles southwest of the Fisher postoffice in Lane county.

A posse outfitted and provided by the Klamath county court left Klamath Falls for Huckleberry mountain in a final effort to find some trace of Martin Owensby, Merrill rancher, who had been missing for nine days.

Announcement was made at Medford of the sale for $125,000 of the Butte Creek orchard of 260 acres, near Eagle Point, mostly planted to pears and apples, to Robert Hunstock of Los Angeles by S. J. Greenwood.

A total of $257,500, representing one-fourth of the receipts from motor vehicle registrations in Oregon during the period March 16 to September 15 of this year has been apportioned among the various counties of the state.

With apple harvest well under way, Hood River orchardists have cut their pre-harvest estimates of tonnage more than 25 per cent. It is estimated that the crop this year will reach 2000 cars, approximately 50 per cent of the tonnage of 1924.

Of 600 acres of potatoes inspected in the Weston mountain district of Umatilla county, a big percentage passed the second field inspection with ratings entitling the tubers to classification as certified or standard seed, according to Fred Bennion, county agent.

One of the largest land deals consummated at The Dalles in some time was announced, approximately 6000 acres of grazing and farm land in southern Wasco county being sold by D. P. Ketchum to his son, William Ketchum. The consideration was placed at $75,000.

Mr. Marchbank has been confined to the house for several days, we hope to see him out soon.

PROTECT THE FISH AND GAME

The state game commissioner seems to be functioning again in harmony which is an act of good judgment for all concerned. We have in Oregon a vast amount of wild life and their protection depends on a well organized game commission.

During the last meeting there entered into the picture Professor Jardine of O. A. C., and outlined a program by which experienced fish culturists might be developed in Oregon. Does Professor Jardine forget that fish culture is not in its infancy in Oregon and that the Oregon system has long been pronounced the best in the land. Why then look for a technician versed in scientific fish culture? There is no one, however well educated along the lines of scientific fish culture, who would be of value to this state what service could he render, who could he direct?

It has come to the writer's knowledge that the state hatchery department has in its personnel men with college training possible along other lines rather than fish culture but who have many years of practical fish culture experience. Is not his mind trained, at least trained to think and above all he knows conditions in his own state. Educate that man. Why educate a total stranger to Oregon and Oregon's methods? Who have you in mind, Professor Jardine?

Even the eminent Dr. David Star Jordan and his assistants have long conceded that their scientific information on trout and salmon of the north-west has been obtained through a series of practical experiments carried on by our local hatcheries. Who then furnished this scientific knowledge to the world?

It is not so many years ago that a certain college in the west constructed a fish hatchery and conducted a course along these lines. What was the result? The fish died. The class was conducted by one of these so-called scientific fish culture experts. This would be a fine program to force onto our all ready hampered hatchery department.

As the hatchery department stands today we have in its personal the reinstated superintendent, Matt Ryckman, a man of vast experience and a flock of wonderful material that scientists and politicians must let alone.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayden visited Portland on Saturday.

Mrs. W. S. Davison visited Portland on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. W. Miller was a Portland visitor on Monday.

Campfire Girls

A Camp Fire business meeting was held Thursday, September 17, to get organized for the following year. There are twelve members and great times are expected. Last Thursday at the close of school a treasure hunt was held and proved to be very good entertainment. Two trail blazers went ahead to blaze the way which led to River Mill.

After finding the buried treasure, which proved to be marshmallows, a lunch was eaten. The climax of the evening's fun came when they crossed the river under the dam and came home on the opposite side of the river.

ESTACADA UNIFORMED BAND.

The band had the distinction of being the official band for the three days of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows Sovereign Grand Lodge convention, and one of the main things accomplished by this engagement was placing Estacada before representatives from all over the world. The band was complimented on every side and mention was made by some of the convention officers that there was a possibility that an invitation might be extended for them to represent the state at the next convention to be held in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, next September as the World's Fair is being held there next year it will certainly be a great boost for Clackamas county to have our local band in that city. If the citizens of this community will continue their support and everyone do their bit there is no doubt but what the Odd Fellows of the state will send them East. So let us all get in and boost the band; they are certainly deserving great credit.

UNION OF CLUBS IS ORGANIZED

At the county fair grounds Friday evening the Greater Clackamas Union of Clubs was organized and officers chosen for the coming year.

With only a few minor changes—the constitution and by-laws reported by the committee of eight were adopted and the next meeting place fixed at Milwaukie on the third Wednesday in October. If the new president finds that the attendance will be greater than Milwaukie can accommodate, he can change the place of meeting.

Those elected to head the new organization for the first year were: president, H. H. Chindgren of Colton; vice-president, M. S. Shrock of Milwaukie; secretary-treasurer, E. A. Koen of Oregon City. There was but one contest, there being two nominees for secretary-treasurer, E. A. Koen and Miss Margaret Beattie, the latter secretary of the Oregon City Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Koen urged that someone outside of Oregon City be chosen, but those attending insisted upon a vote. It resulted in Koen being elected.

The only significant change made in either the constitution or by-laws was that the board of directors shall fix the amount to be levied upon each affliating organization, this not to exceed 10 cents per member annually. All organizations are to report to the Milwaukie meeting their selection of members of the board of directors, so that the organization can immediately begin to function.

It was predicted by a number of those present that the Union of Clubs a going over big, this being particularly true in that there is nothing against women's clubs affiliating. If these organizations join, and it is possible to get still further affiliation from Granges and Farm Bureaus, the association will easily become a powerful body in the interest of county development. At the county fair meeting two Farm Bureaus and two Granges were represented. More are expected to come in at the first regular meeting in Milwaukie.

For the Oregon City Chamber of Commerce, Ralph Shepherd, the president, extended an invitation to the club to meet in Oregon City whenever it chooses. By a vote the offer was accepted with thanks.

It was made evident at the meeting that the club will need little financing. The practice of having each person attending pay for their own lunch, the cost of which is limited to 50 cents, makes it possible for there to be a large attendance at each gathering.

A motion was passed after a talk upon the subject instructing the secretary to present to the county court the endorsement of the club of the proposal that $500 be appropriated to pay for the county's exhibit at the state fair.

It was also proposed by Mr. Chindgren that the club promote the proposal that the 350 members of the boys' and girls' clubs in the county be tendered a banquet in Oregon City following the fairs. He held that there is need of encouragement for this movement, and that it should be encouraged in every possible manner.

The president of the association is a Colton farmer. He is much interested in the improvement of farm conditions, is a breeder of fine livestock, and has shown in many ways that he is able to see the possibilities for good in the new club. M. S. Shrock is a Milwaukie business man, who is associated with the Grange and has been very active in the affairs of that organization. E. A. Koen, the secretary-treasurer, is publisher and editor of the Banner-Courier. All three men have been active in all the moves leading to the formation of the club.—Banner-Courier.
