NEW BUILDING NEARLY DONE

The finishing touches are being put on the new Estacada State Bank building this week, and when completed the bank proper will move into the new edifice. The floors have been laid this week, and it is probable the building will be ready for occupancy some time next week. Workmen have removed the refuse from the streets adjacent to the building, and for the first time in a number of weeks the entire streets near the structure are free of access. The building is a two-story and basement brick. The main floor will house the bank, while the upstairs will be devoted to offices. It is an added improvement to Estacada, one of those building which attracts the eye and promotes favorable comment. We are very glad, indeed, to welcome such improve-ments to our fast growing and prosperous little city.

in their honor in the private car of E. E. King, superintendent of the Southern Pacific railroad. The presentation address was made by Sam A. Kozer, secretary of state. In addition, young Fleming has been invited to be a guest of Mr. King at Crater Lake lodge next summer.

Young Stafford this year won the judging contest in competition with 44 club members from all parts of the state. He made a score of 777 out of a possible 800. The stock judged consisted of eight classes of livestock—two of dairy animals, two of beef, two of hogs and two of sheep, each class being of a different breed. The contestants were required to place the animals and give reasons for their choice in the class pertaining to their own project. Stafford, who is a freshman at Gresham union high school, made a score of 97 per cent on reasons.

city's history were broken in October. Bank clearings for the month amounted to $202,219,122, which was $729,274 more than for the previous largest monthly total, in October of 1923. Portland's bank clearings also exceeded those of Seattle for the month by a total of $2,507,896, reports from the Puget sound metropolis showed. Building activity held up well during the month with a total of 1420 permits issued for contemplated expenditures of $2,267,280. Building permits for the ten months ending October 31 totaled 13,288, with an aggregate value of $33,525,210, a decided increase over permits of the same period last year.

We have always contended, and still in the same notion, that Portland will be the largest city on the Pacific coast in time, and the Rose City is growing by leaps and bounds. As Portland goes, so goes the state.

Russian Attends Oregon College

HARDSHIPS WERE MANY IN ESCAPING THE BOLSHIEVIKI FOR AMERICA.

PROPERTY TAKEN BY REDS

A Comparison Rode Horseback a Distance of Seven Thousand Miles.

Four thousand miles, all the way across Siberia, a Russian lad of 18 years was carried on horseback out of the reach of hostile bolsheviks, which made possible an escape to the United States. That was seven years ago. Today that young Russian, George Berezovsky, is a student in the University of Oregon, majoring in business administration.

Berezovsky was born in Moscow 25 years ago. His father was for 24 years a professor of surgery in the University of Moscow. He had received his degree from, and had taught four years in a university in Berne, Switzerland, before accepting the professorship in Moscow. The mother was the owner of two factories, and when the revolution broke out most of the machinery was taken away piece by piece, until finally the authorities seized both plants. Both parents died about eight years ago.

"I rode 4000 miles on horseback," said the young Russian. "I would have traveled on the railroad, but it was in the hands of the bolsheviks. The journey took about two months of hard riding, but we had to stop in many cities along the way, so it was nearly a year from the time we started until we reached Harbin in China.

"Sometimes when I was riding in winter, though I wore heavy clothing, it would get so cold that I would have to keep my eyes open all the time to keep the eyelashes from freezing together. I had a companion who rode one horse 7000 miles.

"From the very beginning the bolsheviks taught that 'everything that belongs to me belongs to you, and everything that belongs to you belongs to me,' but in practical application it was 'everything that belongs to you belongs to me, and everything that belongs to me belongs also to me.'

"At the time the bolsheviks took command of Russia all business was small and privately owned. It should have passed through the corporation stage, then government ownership, and finally socialism. But they changed too quick. If they had made this growth gradual they might have been successful. By government ownership they eliminated competition, the main factor of successful industrial development which was still needed.

"After a short while they understood that they were acting too rapidly, and that the quick change in social and economic conditions was wrong. It was too early to abolish private ownership. The capitalistic stage is a prerequisite of socialism, and the bolsheviks, by applying Lenin's theory of 'new economic policy,' made an attempt to substitute government ownership for private control of business. But, as we see now, they failed, and it will be a long time before Russia is prosperous again."

POTATO MARKET SOARS

An unusual shortage of potatoes throughout the country has resulted in extraordinary high prices. Prices will go even higher, it is predicted. Idaho Russets are quoted in Chicago at from $5.25 to $5.50. This means a wholesale price of about 60 cents a peck and a retail price of $1 to $1.10 a peck. Failure of the farmers to plant as much of a crop as they did formerly and to the freezing weather in the Idaho and middle western states of the last week gave prices a stimulus. Many potato shippers and growers have been caught unprepared in the potato country and much damage has resulted to the crop both in the ground and in cars. There is only about one-third to one-half the normal crop this year. In past years the farmers have had big crops and lost money, so this year they determined not to plant so heavily and try to make something.

Oregon's potato yield this year is reported 83 per cent of normal, with an increase of 1,188,000 bushels over last year, while in the United States this year's production is estimated at over 100,000,000 bushels below 1924. The big decrease is in the far east and middle west.

December wheat touched the $1.50 mark in Chicago this week.

Portland live stock markets yesterday: Steers, medium, $6.75@8.15; cutton, $5.50@6.75; canner, and cutter, $4.00@5.50; cows, common, $3.25@5.25; canners, $1.50@3.25; calves, $4@8; vealers, $5@10. Hogs, $11.50@12.25.

TOOZE AFTER STATE JOB

With the announcement Tuesday that F. J. Tooze, state senator from Clackamas county, would enter the contest for state superintendent of public instruction at the Republican primary election next May, four avowed candidates are now in the race for the office.

Candidates other than Mr. Tooze include W. C. Anderson, superintendent of schools for Multnomah county; J. A. Howard, superintendent of the Marshfield public schools and E. F. Carleton, at one time assistant state superintendent of schools of Multnomah county. Mr. Carleton is a resident of Eugene.

Mr. Tooze in his announcement said that he has had extensive educational training and successful experience in school teaching and administration. He is now associate editor of the Oregon Statesman, a morning newspaper published in Salem.

Mr. Tooze attended the common schools in Michigan. He graduated from the Michigan state normal school, Michigan university and advanced work in educational history, philosophy and administration. His teaching experience covered many years, both in the rural districts and in the more advanced educational institutions. For nine years he was superintendent of schools at Oregon City. He also was engaged in educational work in the Young Men's Christian association in Portland for several years and later was in charge of a teachers' training course in the public schools there for two years.

GRESHAM PEOPLE WIN PRIZES

In the list of prize winners in the land products show at the Pacific International Livestock exposition are noted the names of several Gresham exhibitors. Under the heading of miscellaneous potatoes, awards were made to W. F. Robinson for first prize, and to Sven Nelson for second. C. H. Stone of Troutdale was a third prize winner in the certified seed potato division, and S. B. Hall, county agricultural agent, came in first in the miscellaneous varieties of certified seed potatoes.

In the boys' and girls' club work Roland Schedeen won first on Burbanks.—Gresham Outlook

HALLOWE'EN PRANK RESULTS SERIOUSLY

The Gresham Outlook says:

An instance of carrying Halloween pranks entirely too far is cited in the event of Saturday night, when a machine was badly wrecked on south Roberts avenue, endangering the lives of the three occupants and damaging the car to the extent of approximately $100. About three o'clock Sunday morning a Ford touring car, containing three persons, two men and a woman, came in from the east, where they had been in attendance at a dance, it is reported. They were from Portland, but it has been impossible to obtain any names.

It is said that it was somewhat foggy, which, perhaps, accounts for the fact the driver did not see four sticks on the road near the Pat Collins place. The car struck the wood, which then veered up onto the bank, where it evidently backed down and turned over once and a half, landing on the side. The top was completely demolished, the windshield broken, two fenders were smashed and the frame bent up in general.

Public indignation has been properly aroused over the so-called fun of boys old enough to know that it is a serious offence, punishable by prison sentence, to place obstructions on a public highway, where machines are passing constantly. An effort is being made to obtain reliable clues as to the names of those pertaining this deed.
