

THE HORSE AND THE MAN

Alexander Phimister Proctor, the sculptor, has been attacked by certain horse fanciers of Oregon on the ground of placing an illy-shaped horse under the bronze statue of Theodore Roosevelt. This statue was located in a Portland park, through the generosity of Dr. Henry Waldo Coe.

Since the controversy has probably reached its height, it might interest the public to know a little more about this artist, so famous for his works in bronze; to know some of his reasons why his judgement is as good as that of Ex Governor West and other local critics.

Fr. Proctor is a Canadian by birth and an artist by training and education. He is from the National Academy of Design and Art, and the Student's League of New York. He spent five years in Paris in the study of technique under Puech and Injalbert, and is a finished artist with many internationally recognized works to his credit. Every exposition since the World Columbian Exposition in Chicago has presented him with medals of the highest honors, and he has been elected a life member of the National Academy of Design.

Among the interesting experiences of his life were the many years that he spent as a huntsman in the Rocky Mountains under practically the same conditions surrounding the experiences of Theodore Roosevelt. This experience would make him competent to judge and reproduce in statuary both horses and men.

Roosevelt spent much of his young manhood in the cattle ranching business, on the upper waters of the Little Missouri River, and this experience enabled him to write those inspiring books.

FARM REMINDERS

Grimm alfalfa is the variety recommended by the Oregon experiment station for all sections of the state. In addition to being drouth and cold resistant Grimm produces more hay per acre in Oregon than the comon variety. The seed of Grimm alfalfa cannot be distinguished and is best purchased from sources that are able to furnish proof that their seed is genuine. Certified seed is good crop insurance. Grimm alfalfa seed prices are a little lower than last season.

Many farmers throughout the state are now cleaning seed for spring planting. Best results are obtained from seed that has had all the dirt and chaff taken out. Clean seed goes through the drill better and gives a more even stand. Clean seed means fewer weeds and bigger yields, believes the experiment station. It pays to sow clean seed.
