NUMBER 1

6 IN TICKET FRAUD POST BAIL BONDS

BONDS OF $1000 EACH POSTED;
PRELIMINARY HEARING
WAIVED

Pleas of not guilty are expected to be entered Friday by the six men indicted Tuesday by the Multnomah county grand jury in connection with the "Yellow Ticket" fraud. The six posted $1000 bond each and waived preliminary hearing.

Representing Charles A. German, Raymond W. Caldwell and John L. Stafford was Franklin J. Correll, attorney. Tom Mannix appeared for Charles E. Henshaw, Edward E. Stackhouse and Walter Bredemeier. The indicted men were apparently reluctant to make any statements concerning the indictment as early as Tuesday. Efforts to get telephone connection with them met with various answers, from "out," "ill," "resting," "not to be disturbed" and phone disconnected.

Each of the six defendants appeared before the grand jury while it was in session at his own request.

The indictment is a misdemeanor under the law and is punishable with a fine of $1000. No jail sentence is connected with the statute. While the men were indicted for "an illegal practice at an election," the jury's findings amount to a conspiracy on the part of the men.

It is reported that Henshaw admits fostering the issuing of the "yellow ticket" on the eve of the primary election.

The funeral of Lindsey Hale was held September 23 in the Methodist church of which he was an active member all his life. Interment was in the Odd Fellows cemetery. Mr. Hale died Wednesday at his home in Currinsville. He was aged 70 years 8 months and 27 days, and was born in Grayson county Virginia, December 25, 1855. He came to Oregon in 1879, locating in Currinsville. He was married to Lucretia Currin in 1880. His wife, Ethel and Lester Hale, four grandchildren, of his home, and three brothers in Virginia survive him.

Help the Good Trees

The farm wood land will be improved by the removal of trees which have been overtopped by others and have had their growth stunted; diseased trees, or those seriously injured or extremely liable to injury by insect attacks, as chestnuts in the region subject to blight or birch in the gipsy-moth area; badly fire-scarred trees; trees of the less valuable species; crooked, large-crowned, or short bodied trees, which will not make good lumber and which are crowding or overtopping others; slow growing trees which are crowding fast growing kinds of equal value; sound dead trees, both standing and down.

Reason for Lime

Many soils are deficient in lime and its addition will result in larger crop yields. An important effect of liming is a stimulation of the decomposition of organic matter. When lime in any form is applied to soils with sufficient organic matter, especially in warm, humid climates, it is usually advisable to add manure or plow under green crops for the purpose of keeping up or if possible increasing the supply of this essential ingredient.

Soils require lime for other reasons, among them for correction of acidity, for improvement of the drainage and to supply lack of lime for plant food. It is suggested that farmers experiment on their own soils with various crops to determine the response to liming.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends and the Currinsville Ladies Aid for the beautiful floral offerings and for the sympathy and kindness during the late illness and death of our beloved husband and father.

Mrs. Lou Hale,
Lester Hale,
Ethel Hale,

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Wanda Carter was hostess to a number of her friends on Thursday afternoon, September 30, whom she asked to her home to help her celebrate her twelfth birthday. A jolly afternoon was spent playing games on the lawn. At the close of the playing the youngsters were bidden into the house where a beautifully decorated table, centered with a large birthday cake, gayly lighted. The color scheme for the table was pink and green. The guest of honor received a number of dainty little gifts, which were placed around the cake on the table and opened when the children were eating their lunch. Those enjoying the afternoon and wishing Miss Wanda many more happy birthdays were, Gwendolyn and Louise Geil, Mary Emma Surface, Glen Cary, Luena Grabael, Neva Lemon, Louise Armstrong, Lois Smith, Lois Bates, Ella Hayden, Myrtle, Pauline and George Moore. Miss Wanda is the charming young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Carter.

Do not forget to attend the joint political meeting at the Liberty Theater Friday evening.

Surprising Finds Made in Australian Caves

Astonishing finds have been made in the Wellington (Australia) caves, which include fossil remains which have been identified as those of the marsupial lion, an animal which combined the pouch of the kangaroo with the general characteristics of the African lion. Few specimens of the remains of this marsupial have been found in recent years. It has been described as one of the fiercest and most destructive of predatory beasts known to naturalists. Other new discoveries in these stalagmite caves have been classified as those of the diprotodon, an animal of the kangaroo type, but immensely greater in bulk than a full-grown rhinoceros. The fossils indicate an animal with an enormous head and a thick, strong neck, extremely large, chisel-shaped teeth and well-marked fingers and toes. The foot structure shows that these animals or their immediate ancestors were tree-climbers, the big toe being placed nearly at right angles to the others in order to enable it to obtain a grip as it mounted.

Bishop Has Honor as London's Patron Saint

One of the earliest bishops of London was St. Erkenwald, whose "festival" occurred recently. He was a Londoner born and bred, so it was only fitting that shortly after his death, which took place in 1033, he should be acclaimed London's patron saint. St. Erkenwald restored the first St. Paul's cathedral, and was buried within its walls. In 1136 London was partly destroyed by a great fire that burned old London bridge and a portion of the cathedral, but stopped at his shrine. Pious folks professed to regard this as a miraculous intervention of the dead saint, and from thence on his tomb became a place of pilgrimage. Many of them brought rare and costly gifts, so that in course of time Erkenwald's magnificent tomb was ablaze with precious stones.—Chicago Journal.

Really People's Bank

Napoleon I headed the list of stockholders, with 30 shares in his name, when the Bank of France was founded in February, 1800. It was constituted in the form of a joint stock company, with a capital of 30,000,000 francs, at that time about $6,000,000. The Bank of France differs from other central banks in that it deals with private individuals. It makes loans as small as $1 and the law requires it to do so. In an ordinary year before the World war the institution made 247,735 loans in sums not more than $2 and of the 8,900,000 separate bills discounted at Paris in one year, 4,304,000 were for amounts less than $20, says the Albany News. It is the bank of the people. Peasants and millionaires look upon it as their own.

Literary Love Adventures

A love adventure in story form is guaranteed to be complete in itself, to be over when it is finished and to leave behind it nothing but a pleasant memory in the reader's mind. In all these ways it differs from a love adventure in reality, concerning which no such safe guarantees can be offered. We try to live orderly lives, and while the love adventures of reality may upset the well-considered plans of a lifetime, the other kind leaves everything exactly as it was. The heroine may swoon with ecstasy in your arms tonight; but she will not call you up on the telephone in the morning or write you passionate and compromising letters.

The Philadelphia of Our Ancestors

Here is shown a section of "High Street," a reproduction of Philadelphia's famous Market street in the days of 1776. It is one of the outstanding features of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition now being held in Philadelphia to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Every building has been built to actual size and in actual architectural detail. The furnishings of each building are exact reproductions of those used in the Revolutionary days. Many of the pieces on display are the originals and today are worth thousands of dollars because of their historic value. The Exposition continues until December 1.

Political Meeting

Representatives of R. N. Stanfield and Bert E. Haney will discuss the political issues and speak for their respective candidates at the Liberty Theater on Friday night, October 8.

R. C. Taylor will speak in the interest of Mr. Stanfield. Mr. Taylor, we believe, has been, or is, secretary in some capacity for Mr. Stanfield.

Canine Wisdom

A story of extraordinary sagacity on the part of a sheep-dog was told at the inquest at Bewcastle, Cumberland, on Adam Waugh, a farmer, says the London Chronicle.

Mr. Waugh, who owned a high-lying farm at Low Todhills, Roadhead, among the lovely Bewcastle hills, had been to a neighboring farm, the Nook, and was returning home in the evening with his dog and cattle.

The dog arrived back at the Nook alone, bringing the cattle, and by its uneasy movements conveyed to the owner, Mr. Ewart, that something was amiss.

Mr. Ewart made search, and found his friend dead by the roadside of heart failure.

Tune in on This One

Mr. Hoople, who might be described as a "yes, my dear," was enjoying his pipe and radio concert in the front room when his storm-and-strife returned home from a lodge a trifle earlier than usual.

"Homer," she demanded telly, "have you been smoking in this room after all I've said?"

"Why—er—no, m'dear," stammered the head of the family, squirming to get away from the hot pipe in his pocket.

"Then what makes this room so smoky?"

"Well," offered her better half, "I had Pittsburgh awhile ago."—Toronto Gossip.

Spreading Disease

There are plenty of people who do not understand the precise difference between a contagious and an infectious disease. In the former case the disease is passed on by contact, direct or indirect. You may contract the disease by touching the person, or by touching something the person has touched. But in the latter case the air itself may become infected, and the disease may be "breathed into the system" by one who has never been near the original sufferer, or near any person or object the sufferer has touched. A proper understanding of these terms is necessary for one's self-protection.

Good Deal of Difference

An Irishman, married to a Scotch woman, took a woman friend of the family's out to lunch. Knowing that his wife was not of a jealous disposition, he mentioned the matter to her when he came home that evening. To his surprise she became angry. "But you sometimes go out to lunch with men who are our friends," protested the husband, "and I don't object. Now what is the difference between the two cases?" "The difference," snapped the wife, "is in the bill. In the one case you pay it; in the other case I save it."

The Freezing Point

"Perhaps it is best after all," remarked the rejected suitor as he lingered in the hall. "A man of twenty-five would soon tire of a wife who hovered round the thirty-two mark." "Why, Mr. Ardent," said the woman in the case, "how very ungrateful of you to insinuate that I am thirty-two." "Well, perhaps you are not," he replied, "but it certainly struck me that you were somewhat near the freezing point."

INTERFERENCE IN INDUSTRY

It is not difficult to visualize the effect on the lumber industry in Oregon if it shall be decided by the voters of this state that hydro-electric energy shall be supplied by state-owned and operated enterprise.

Imagine, for example, the State of Washington notifying any of its big lumber companies that here after all streams would be subject to the whim and dictation of a housewives' council board, named in a constitutional amendment! Oregon faces that identical situation. Giant sawmills hum along the Columbia river, on Coos Bay, along the Deschutes, and throughout Oregon's great stand of forest timber. Many of these mills have their own equipment. Those near central energy use power for machinery, light and other mill purposes. Such a mill could not generate its own electricity, could not dam a stream for logging purposes, and could in no manner use the streams of Oregon, without the consent of a politically appointed and politically minded board of managers, supreme in itself and responsible to no other state official body or executive.

Is it to be supposed that investments of capital will continue in Oregon by those who are sending lumber from this state to all the world in raw and manufactured form? Electric cranes facilitate lumber shipment; electric trucks operate in the yards; electric motors drive the saws, shapers and planers. Electricity throughout the mills reduces the danger of fire and is elemental. If the exclusive right to dictate how this electrical energy shall be supplied, and to tax property for the deficits of operation, were vested in this political board, lumber industries could certainly hesitate before making further investments. These mills pay large taxes; owners of lumber are taxed for their uncut holdings. The proposal of the housewives' council makes the taxing properties of Oregon directly responsible.

In November the constitutional amendment will be presented for voters to decide. Men who have made a close study of the subject answer the question with a flat negative. Voters should be prepared to act intelligently. The measure should be defeated.

September 25 F. N. Cadaman brought to the News office two boxes weighing two and one-half pounds. We have not seen any other or more perfect specimens of this fruit any where.

The Labor Day picture taken along the line of march from Estacada to Carver and return, by way of Springwater will be shown at the Liberty theater Wednesday and Thursday, October 13 and 14.

For the benefit of society it is to be hoped the chemists' dream of compound to eliminate sleep may not come true. What devilry a lot of people can't think up in their waking hours is had enough without any further loss of sleep.

Without honest, earnest desire nothing can be accomplished, neither it be to lead the right kind of life, succeed in business, or even to become a sanguinary, common liar.
