MILKING MACHINES INCREASE

The growing importance of mechanical milkers in the production of market milk is indicated by an increase in the number of milking machine units manufactured, as reported by the bureau of the census, from a total of 8,570 in 1922 to 14,954 in 1925. That well-informed, careful dairymen who use milking machines can produce clean milk with a low bacterial count is demonstrated by the production of certified milk on the farms, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Where the machines are cleaned and sterilized with sufficient frequency and thoroughness the milk will be as clean and as free from bacteria as that milked by hand.

MAKING GOOD BETTER

Cow-testing association records show that the yearly production of the first six daughters of one pure-bred dairy sire was 12,742 pounds of milk and 434 pounds of butterfat.
