EAGLE CREEK

The local P. T. A. held their regular meeting in the schoolhouse last Wednesday afternoon. Several important issues were discussed and decided upon. The hot lunch was decided to be discontinued for the school term, now that the weather is not so severe. It was also unanimously voted to buy a baseball mit, bats and balls for the school baseball team so that the students might be prepared to play some neighboring schools. In the absence of Mrs. Guy Clester, president, Mrs. Burnett acted as chairman and Mrs. Gertrude Sanders as secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cogswell motored to Springwater Sunday to visit friends.

Mrs. Homer Glover spent Tuesday in Portland.

The Christian Endeavor society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sanderson last Friday evening for their regular business and social meeting. Upon the adjournment of the business meeting, the remainder of the evening was spent playing various games. Close to the midnight hour, delicious refreshments were served. Thirty-two young people were present to enjoy the occasional. It was decided to have the next regular meeting on March 25 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Clester. Definite arrangements and characters were chosen for the play to be given under the direction of Mrs. Weatherby sometime the latter part of April.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders were hosts of a birthday dinner party on Tuesday evening, complimenting Miss Fern Clute. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cogswell, Mrs. Emma West, Mr. Grant Test, the honor guest and the hosts. The color scheme was carried out in the dainty spring colors of yellow and white for the dinner table.

The Ladies' Aid of the Eagle Creek church met with Mrs. Homer Glover on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Spilde motored to Portland Monday.

Matt Glover, accompanied by Mrs. Mattie Troupe, Thelma Troupe, Cecil Meyers and Albert Lawrence motored into Oregon City Monday evening to attend the Christian Endeavor rally. Judge Kanzler was one of the prominent speakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Clester and family were visitors last Thursday evening at the Cahill home.

Stain Removers

The following is contributed by Mrs. Sam Barr, who has tried the methods given and recommends them. If other readers have favorite ways of doing household work, the NEWS will be glad to serve as a medium of exchange.

Many stains, often thought impossible to remove without the use of chemicals, can very easily be eradicated with the aid of only the things found in every kitchen. Three of the most common stains are mildew, grass stain, and machine grease.

For Mildew: moisten the stains well with strong soap, sprinkle with salt and hang in the sun. It often takes two or three weeks for all the stains to disappear but this method is sure and will not injure the fabric although, of course, the sun may effect the colors.

For grass stain: simply wet the stains well with common kerosene before washing.

For machine grease, by this is meant the black, dirty grease on machinery:—Before washing, rub the spots well with any kind of unsalted shortening, let stand a few minutes then rub well with soap. Place in the suds and rub between the hands. It may take persistent rubbing but all the stain will finally disappear.

New gingham, if allowed to stand a few minutes in strong hot salt water, will neither fade nor shrink when washed.

Old woolen or outing-flannel rags, if clipped into tiny pieces, are unsurpassed as filling for sofa pillows. Whet your kitchen knives on the edge of a stone jar.

FARM REMINDERS

Forcing or fattening feeds are harmful to the birds during the breeding season, according to the poultrymen at the college station.

Chicks are not removed from the incubator immediately after hatching by successful Oregon poultrymen. They are allowed time enough to dry off thoroughly before being moved.

Plans to increase the amount of irrigation equipment to be used at the college and experiment station gardens on Kiger island near Corvallis are being made, reports the vegetable gardening department of the state college. Both the overhead and the gravity systems are being used. It is planned to extend the area to be watered by the gravity system. A centrifugal pump, raising the water 22 feet from a driving well, supplies the water for gravity irrigation. The water is distributed in open ditches leading from a 3-inch permanently laid pipe. Vegetables watered by this system include sweet corn, tomatoes, celery and melons, while the overhead system is used for early cabbage, spinach, early lettuce, peppers and early root vegetables.

Planer shavings as filler for bee smokers is recommended by H. A. Scullen, bee specialist at O. A. C. Other substances such as dry corn cobs, oily waste, and dry rotten wood may also be used.

Transplanting of early cabbage and lettuce plants in Oregon will begin as soon as weather and soil conditions are suitable, says the vegetable gardening department of the state college. By setting plants out late in February or early March the grower has an opportunity to harvest them early in May when demand is strong and prices good. The most widely used variety of cabbage is Golden Acre, a Copenhagen market strain and of lettuce is New York.
