HIGH SCHOOL NOTES
By Lillian Duncan

Of the various subjects taught in the high school, manual training is certainly one of the most valuable. In addition to learning construction work, the student learns to sharpen and care for his tools. He learns neatness and reliability. The many problems which he must overcome in turning out a project teach him to think and foster any mechanical ability he may have. The day is past when high school graduates are unable to use a saw, hammer and plane. Now-a-days, anybody of natural ability has a wonderful chance to acquire, not only "book-learning" but a practical and working knowledge of a trade which will help him all through life.

A meeting of the student body was called Monday morning for the purpose of awarding the letters won in basketball this year to the following students: Blanche Armstrong, Ora McKinney, Irma Wilcox, Irene Davi, Ethel Ficken, Edna Carter, Dan Jennings, Everett Osborne, Jim Jennings, Jim Fantz, Fred Voigt, Robert Hayden and Harold Sarver.

A dinner was given for the basketball girls by Miss Bryant, their coach last Thursday evening. Alice Kaake was toastmistress and announced the following speakers: Lura Berry, Irene Davis, Erma Wilcox, Edna Carter, Edna Bates, Olive Bishop, Blanche Armstrong and Miss Bryant.

The last group pictures were taken for the annual last Friday when the basketball teams and the boys' letterman club were taken.

Since the good weather has permitted it, a great number of the boys have turned out for baseball practice, making prospects for a good team this season.

And Don't Come Back

There is a rule at Monte Carlo that if a player begs himself at the gaming tables the establishment will reimburse him sufficiently to insure his return to his home place. But he may never play there again until the loan is paid.

In the "Roaring Forties" in this city is a restaurant which has a rule somewhat similar. The place is noted for its steaks and chops and its proprietor swears by them. Such, indeed, is his pride that no patron who is served and complains about the quality of the food is permitted to pay for it. The check for his repast is destroyed before his face. Then he is courteously asked never to darken the door of the establishment again.—New York World.

Family of Statesmen

Ohio once had a representative in congress who was the son of a President and the father of a President. He was John Scott Harrison, born at Terre Haute, Ind., at the time when his father, Gen. William Henry Harrison, was governor of Indiana. His son was Benjamin Harrison. John Scott Harrison served only two terms in congress, then retired to the ancestral farm near North Bend, Ohio, where he devoted the rest of his life to agriculture, art and literature. He was first elected in 1832 to the Thirty-second congress. His second term was in the Thirty-fourth congress. He died at North Bend, May 26, 1878.

Kanakas Left Record of Engineering Skill

In bygone days the natives of New Caledonia displayed an astonishing knowledge of engineering. Because the valleys where they lived were too narrow to support a growing population, they carved the sides of the hills into great terraces. These were carefully graded so that mountain streams could be made to flow smoothly along each terrace and down to the next in zigzags, each half a mile or so long, says a writer in Adventure Magazine. If there was no spring on the hillside, they brought water from neighboring slopes along viaducts made of hollowed-out tree-trunks. They gauged levels with a nicety modern engineers might envy. Few of these terraced hillside are cultivated today. The white man has changed all that. The native population is decreasing, the survivors are apathetic and indolent; they work on plantations or cattle ranches, and on Sundays they get drunk when they are not attending church.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Cooking does not destroy the valuable mineral salts found in many fresh vegetables, but some of the minerals are dissolved in the water in which the vegetables are cooked. This liquid should therefore be served or utilized in some way. It may be saved for soup or used in gravies or sauces.

Cooking a meringue in too hot an oven makes it tough and watery. Use a slow oven with meringues. Then they will set all the way through, brown delicately on top, and remain puffy after they are taken from the oven.

The body must have mineral matter to build and repair bones, teeth, and other tissues, and keep it in good running order. Calcium is found in dried beans, cauliflower, Swiss chard, peas, turnips, carrots, parsnips, oranges, and certain other fruits and vegetables. Milk used in cooking any of these foods or served with them increases the amount of calcium taken. Iron is supplied by fruits in general and by the green-leaf vegetables, such as lettuce and dandelion greens, and particularly by spinach. As a source of iron, spinach is in a class by itself. Egg yolk is another good source of iron.
