OBITUARY

James Jonathan Beard
James Jonathan Beard was born December 4, 1880, at Afton, Iowa. Died March 18, 1927 aged 46.
He leaves a mother, Mrs. Laura Beard, who lives at Withrow, Washington; three brothers, Clay, of Mansfield, Washington, Gaylord, of Palesade, Washington, and Reid, who is a marine in Pekin, China; four sisters, Mrs. Grace Bedford, in Pasadena, California, Mrs. R. M. Vanwinkle, Aberdeen, South Dakota, Mrs. Blanch Rogers, Seattle Washington, and Mrs. Clare Peterson of Mansfield, Washington. His father has been gone 20 years, having died January 6, 1906.
The deceased had lived in Estacada for eight years.
Miss Evelyn Haworth of Stayton, telephone operator of that place, has taken the place of Juanita Brendle in the home exchange. Miss Brendle having returned to the office in Oregon City.

The Japanese Way
Drinking tea is one way the Japanese have of embroidering the stuff of nature and making life interesting. The Japanese even have a "Holy Scripture of Tea," which directs exactly how tea shall be made so that "each leaf should fold like a mist rising out of a ravine and be wet and soft like fine earth newly swept by rain." Centuries ago a Japanese named Rikyu founded the tea cult and wrote an elaborate code of tea etiquette that is unchanged to this day. —Tea and Coffee Journal.

Grateful Expectancy
Herbert, aged three, had been given an orange by a gentleman who had called. As oranges were a rare luxury in Herbert's experience he gazed at the fruit in rapt admiration, but could say nothing.
Mother, after waiting for him to thank his benefactor, decided to prompt him, so she said, "What do you say, son?"
"Oh, thanks," said the little fellow, hardly withdrawing his gaze from the golden ball, "have you got any more?"

Find Ample Proof of Elephants in America

Scientists interested in the prehistoric animals that roamed the North American continent in times too remote to calculate offhand have now and then resurrected from their beds of rock and debris the skeletons of mammoths and mastodons, those strange creatures akin to the elephant. That the elephant species was known to the civilizations of Central America not so many thousands of years ago seems to be proved conclusively by recent excavations made in Panama. A. Hyatt Verrill, writing in World's Work, describes the strange sculptures of an ancient people, dug up from the volcanic soil of the little Isthmian republic showing the degree of artistic advancement achieved by that vanished race.
Perhaps the most interesting and remarkable find of all, writes Mr. Verrill, was a large sculptured stone figure thoroughly elephantine in form and detail. Hitherto the so-called "elephants" found in prehistoric (and modern) American ceramics and stone work have been generally accepted as conventionalized antbears or tapirs with exaggerated snouts. But in this case it is scarcely possible to account for the creature on this hypothesis. Not only is the body elephantine, but the large leaf-like ears could belong to no other known creature, while the hind knees bend forward, a characteristic of the elephant. It is difficult to believe that any man unfamiliar with the elephant could have conventionalized a tapir or an antbear to the extent of adding broad fan-shaped ears and legs bending forward, while, as a final touch, the creature is represented carrying a load or burden upon its back.

Not Much of a Meal for Real Hungry Man

Uncle Lije Waters was accustomed to seeing good-sized squares of sponge cake or gingerbread on the upper table, and when he had his first plate of ice cream in a city cafe, he looked with some disfavor on the macarons and small sponge drops which accompanied it.
"How do you like it?" asked the niece, who was doing the honors of the city for her uncle.
"The ice cream is certainly first rate," said Uncle Lije. "I call it extra good; but when you come to these things, he added, lifting one of the lady fingers and surveying it doubtfully, "I presume to say they're right enough, what there is of 'em, but there isn't enough of 'em—just nothing but gauze and swallow."

Craze Followed Hysteria

A classic example of what popular imagination applied to the common spider can do is told in Hygeia Magazine. Italy in the Middle Ages was swept by a dancing mania or tarantism.
Persons bitten by a spider called the European tarantula suddenly became extremely sensitive to music, dancing in a frenzy of excitement until they sunk to the ground, exhausted and almost lifeless. Certain forms of music were considered good for the afflicted and bore the name tarantella. The cause was not a spider's bite but a hysteria due to the depleted mental and physical condition of the people as a result of the frequent wars and plagues. The same sort of thing was seen in the craze for long-distance dancing in this country a few years after the World war.

Abbey Is Battle Pledge

Battle abbey, near Hastings, England, was built to fulfill a novel pledge made by William the Conqueror just before his victory there on October 14, 1066.
When William was arming for the fight he is said to have inadvertently put on his shirt of mail with the hind side in front. Partly in order to avert the bad omen, he vowed that, if victorious, he would build on the very site of the battle a great abbey.
It was finally dedicated by William Rufus in 1084. At the dissolution of the monasteries under Henry VIII, the buildings were given to Sir Anthony Browne, who added to the Abbot's lodge a west wing for the use of his ward, the Princess Elizabeth. The abbey still is in excellent preservation. —F. G. Brabant, in "Rambles in Sussex."

Embroidering Long Known

The girl who uses an embroidery needle today is practicing an art that was highly developed in Egypt 3,000 years ago.
The accomplishment was brought from Egypt to Europe, and was also highly developed in early Greece and Rome. The women of medieval days in Europe were excellent at it, and many splendid ornaments were made for churches and monasteries. At the present time the Orient leads in the art, with the work of the Chinese probably being the most elaborate.

Always Polite

The manager of the isolated factory had received a letter from a woman stating that her husband, who worked in the factory, had sent her no money for weeks and weeks.
So the manager, a kindly man, sent for the delinquent there and then, "Jackson," he said, when the man made his appearance, "do you ever send your wife anything when you write?"
"Oh, yes, sir," answered the other, truthfully, "always my kindest regards."

Seek Synthetic Rubber

The Amazon district of Brazil is the great rubber-producing country of the world, for more than half of the total supply comes from there. The federated Malay states, the Congo region, Portuguese West Africa, the east coast of tropical Africa, Rangzon, Penang, Borneo and Mexico, the West Indies and Central America are the other rubber-producing districts. About one-tenth of the total yield comes from the Congo.
The rapidly increasing cost of the article has aroused experimenters, who have produced substances that have some of the qualities of rubber. It is not improbable that they may ultimately succeed, as the chemists did in producing artificial indigo, in making real rubber by synthesis.

Columbus Promised Much

In a letter to Columbus on the discovery of America, facsimile edition, 1892, of the four Latin editions belonging to the Lenox library, is the following passage: "Finally, that I may compress in a few words the brief account of our departure and quick return, and the gain, I promise this, that if I am supported by our most invincible sovereigns with a little of their help, as much gold can be supplied as they will need, indeed, as much of spices, of cotton, of chewing gum (which is only found in Chios), also as much of aloe-wood, and as many slaves for the navy of their majesties will wish to demand." The date of this letter is March 14, 1493—more than 400 years ago.
