Beets need not always be served cold, in vinegar. The new, young summer beets are especially good hot, with butter and salt and pepper. Cook them in their skins and peel them when done by plunging quickly in cold water.

If your sewing machine has been closed for any length of time, it will probably need a thorough going over. Wipe and dust it carefully, fill your oil can with kerosene, oil every part and run it vigorously without thread until well loosened up. Then oil with good quality of machine oil and go over all the parts again. Wipe and clean carefully, stitch on scraps until thread is perfectly clean, and as a final precaution, tie a bit of wool on the presser foot above the needle to prevent any oil from running down on the work.

Fried Apples And Bacon

Thinly sliced bacon is delicious when browned under the flame of the broiler in a gas stove. It is then free of excess fat, crisp and appetizing. Good results can also be obtained by frying it in a heavy skillet, draining off the fat with brown paper. Apples or tomatoes can then be fried in the fat and according to the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, make a particularly attractive breakfast dish. The following recipe is suggested for fried apples and bacon: select good tart apples, peel and cut them in 1/2 to 1 inch cubes. Fry the bacon in a heavy skillet, as soon as the slices of bacon are crisp, remove and drain them on clean brown paper. For frying the apples you will need about 1/4 cup of bacon fat. Fry the apples in the fat, high in the frying pan. Sugar to taste. Be sure you use enough sugar; apples fried this way need more sugar than apples fried in the ordinary way. Cover and cook slowly until tender.

Then remove the cover, and turn the apples gently, so the pieces will keep their shape. Let them brown lightly; they are then almost transparent. Place them in a hot platter and surround them with the bacon.

In the northern angle of the Patagonian hills stands a palace, which the people of Rome believe to be haunted by the ghost of the half-breed Caligula, the emperor who surpassed even Nero in cruelty and bloodthirstiness. Pierre Van Parrenen relates, in the Atlantic Constitution. Though the guide refused to accompany us to the half-moldered ruins, we encountered no ghost in any of the historic halls, though we half expected to see phantoms repeat the ghastly scenes that were once enacted here. For here Caligula, reclining at the banquet table, burst out laughing, and when asked the cause of his mirth replied: "How easy it would be to have the heads of my courtiers roll over the marble floors." In this same chamber Claudius was feasting when he was informed that his wife Messalina was dead and received the news with a gasp, then ordered a slave to pour him a cup of wine. And here also the same emperor decried his fatal repast of mushrooms of which Tacitus speaks, a dish prepared by his loving wife and niece, Agrippina. In order to make way to the throne for her son Nero.

Executive shyness was an affliction of Thomas Nast, the great cartoonist, who lifted caricature from its obscurity to its present position as one of the most potent agencies for creating and influencing public opinion. He was appalled at the very thought of having to face a crowd in person. After other agencies had ceased to avail for his services on the lecture platform, Redpath's succeeded only after a representative had camped on his trail for months. It was explained to the artist that he could keep his back to his audience, holding his program in most of the talking, and need not only occasionally for a brief remark. Nast stood up for the tour of illustrated lectures and the brief simplicity of his remarks made quite a hit with his audiences. On one occasion in Philadelphia he went to his blackboard on the stage and rapidly drew the outlines of a great building, then turning his head he remarked dryly: "You see I can draw a house." As the theater was packed, the audience decided he had intended the possible double meaning and a storm of applause ensued. He earned $40,000 that season, but got "home sick" toward the close and canceled engagements that would have brought $5,000 more.
