PUPULAR SCREEN PLAYERS IN CAST OF "HIS DOG"

Headed by Joseph Schildkraut and Julia Faye, each of whom scored King of Kings," the featured cast of "His Dog," which Carl Brown directed at the DeMille studio, and which comes to the Liberty Theatre here on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, is of unusual calibre.

Schildkraut, in the leading male role, is seen as a social outcast, tired of life, although but a young man, who later is brought to his senses and becomes a valued citizen of his community through the example of the loyalty and devotion of his dog. The role, although difficult, is said to offer Schildkraut, who portrayed Judas in "The King of Kings," another opportunity to display his fine

Julia Faye, whose rise to prominence during the past year has been marked by fine performances in "The Volga Boatman," "Corporal Kate," "The Kankee Clipper," "Turkish Delight," and other important pictures, is opposite Schildkraut, in the role of little country girl.

Robert Edeson, who portrayed the Apostle Matthew in "The King of Kings," and who has been seen to advantage in father portrayals in a score or more of big productions, once again plays the father in "His Sally Rand, Wampas baby star of 1927, has a conspicuous part while Fred Walton, who recently gave a fine performance as a butler in "The Little Adventuress," is seen in a strong character delineation. Ananbelle Magnus also is well cast.

"His Dog" was prepared for the screen by Olga Printzlau from Albert Payson Terhune's gripping magazine serial of the same name. Walter Woods supervised the production.

GOVERNMENT TRAILS

(By Eula Park Harris)

Just a little while ago Trails were locked in winter snow, Hushed and dark in twilight gloom, Shining, sparkling when the moon Rose in splendor, white and still

On the frosty, silv'ry hills. Savage storms with howl and wail Felled great giants on the trail, Tore up thru the stunted pine, Whipped the peaks at timberline, Till the last wild fury gone,

Wood folks haunt the trails at dawn.

Often heaps of gray rain clouds Piled the mountains like a shroud Wrapped the firs in drenching pours, Fragrant, warm, till sunset doors Opened rosy in the west

And wet trails ware sunny flecks. Now that snow has left the range Rhododendron blooms again. Grouse whir up in sudden flight

Cutting logs, repairing wire, Forests must be free from fire, Clear to skyline's rugged end Trails are opened up again.
