FOURTH OF JULY PRAYER

By Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, M. D., pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C.

God of our fathers, God of the ages, our God, we thank Thee that in all times of crisis when the resources of men shrivel the resources of God unfold. Thou hast never forgotten or forsaken those who put their trust in Thee. This nation is an eternal witness to thy providence and care. On this holy day we pause again to acknowledge that guidance in the affairs of our country.

We bless Thee that thou hast vindicated again that in the affairs of nations, as in the lives of men, that "they that put their trust in God shall never be put to shame." Wherever men have lived by a deep and abiding faith in Thee, there freedom has been born.

Accept our unfeigned thanks for those who have given their all for love of country. We cannot exalt them now but we can exalt ourselves by living out the ideals to which they held fast. We have wisdom enough, we have wealth enough, but we have not reverence enough for Thee. Deepen that reverence in us today.

Give us their courage born of waiting, their patience begotten of high resolves, their faith born of assurance of Thy unfaltering presence. May prosperity abound, may peace be established in the world and may Thy kingdom come.

Unto Thee, O illimitable Love, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, shall we give all the praise, world without end. Amen.

POLITICS MAKES STRANGE BED-FELLOWS

The presidential campaign of 1928 presents one unique feature at least. It is that of a white man running for president and a negro candidate for vice president on the same ticket—that of the Interracial independent political party.

Possibly a good many of you have never heard of this party, but its leaders claim fifteen million negroes are favorable to it; a ridiculous claim, of course.

But many have heard of its presidential candidate, who is none other than "General" Jacob S. Coxey, leader of Coxey's Army of 1894, composed of jobless men who marched to Washington to obtain relief, but accomplished little except to call attention to the widespread unemployment then existing. Some of them were even arrested for trespassing on the capitol grounds.

Coxey, who is now 74, operates a silica sand company in Ohio and also has oil interests in Oklahoma. The negro vice presidential candidate is Simon P. W. Drew, a preacher and real estate operator.

Thus again is illustrated the saying that "politics makes strange bed-fellows."

CONCEDE NOMINATION OF SMITH

That Al Smith of New York will receive the nomination of the democratic convention for the presidency of the United States is practically conceded by his most bitter opponents. Without a doubt Mr. Smith is the strongest candidate the party can put up for the office.

The News figures that Al and Hoover will each poll something near the normal vote of their respective parties. Some of the republican Catholic vote will go to the democratic nominee, and some democrats will vote for Hoover because of their religious views. But the result so far as religion is concerned will have little bearing on the total vote. And the prohibition proposition will no doubt work out about the same way, Hoover probably getting the best of the trade, because so many more of the people in the country are in favor of prohibition.

Herbert Hoover will be elected president with about the same number of votes that Coolidge had four years ago, less the vote of the state of New York.

If you do not agree with this, make your own guess.

The most expensive automobile manufactured in the United States is the Rolls-Royce, Lonsdale model, priced at $19,885. Still the fellow with a second hand Henry enjoys his car more than the man who owns the expensive machine.

Science has so far failed to improve the quality of the gas with which campaign orators are inflated.

Texas wants Jones as candidate for vice president. A case of trying to keep up with the Smiths.
