OREGON CITY-VIOLA ROAD CASE DISMISSED

Circuit Judge Geo. Bagley, Hillsboro, has dismissed the writ of review in the case of D. C. Latourette against Clackamas county, involving the straightening of the Oregon City-Viola road, according to word received Tuesday by County Clerk Donald J. Ryan. This is a victory for the county and Latourette still has the right to appeal the case to the supreme court.

Latourette contended that the county court's steps had been illegal in instituting proceedings that culminated in the taking of his property for the straightening of the road.

The question raised at the writ of review hearing was that the county court did not issue an order directing the surveyor to make a survey of the road even though the resolution set out that a survey had been made by the court. Another angle was that the resolution did not set forth a proper necessity for taking the land for road purposes.

Judge Bagley also had to determine whether or not the county surveyor had made a proper posting of notices and whether or not the county clerk had caused proper notices to be forwarded by registered mail to land owners as provided by law.

If this case is carried to the supreme court it will result in a decision upon the meaning of an act of the last legislature, which set up new procedure for location and re-location and straightening of county roads.—Morning Enterprise.
