

WISE WIFE KNOWS HOW TO HOLD HUBBY'S LOVE

A wise wife is a woman who refuses to allow another woman to possess herself of her husband without fighting to retain his love.

This is the impression one gets when one sees the fine De Mille picture production "The Wise Wife," which is to be shown at the Liberty, Estacada, Wednesday. The featured players are Phyllis Haver, Tom Moore, Jacqueline Logan and Joseph Striker. Miss Haver is the wife, Mr. Moore the husband, Miss Logan the flapper who intrigues the husband, while Mr. Striker, the fiancé of the flapper, is the innocent tool employed by the wise wife in accomplishing her purpose.

Helen Blaisdell is a plain home-living wife who loves her husband devotedly. Comes a southern girl of the flapper type to visit them and instantly Blaisdell falls in love with her. The gossips get busy and when Mrs. Blaisdell learns the truth, she decides to play a bold game in order to retain her husband's affections.

She tells her husband and the flapper that they must prove themselves really in love with each other before she consents to a divorce. She appoints the flapper as her husband's custodian and to care for him just as she herself would do.

Then she develops into a modern flapper herself and when the fiancé of the southern girl arrives on the scene, the wife pretends to make love to him with the result that her husband's jealousy is aroused. Many interesting developments then occur, the most important being the return of the husband to his wife and the flapper to her fiancé.

The story has been finely handled by E. Mason Hopper, an expert director of polite comedies. It was written by Arthur Somers Roche and adapted by Zelta Sears and Tay Garnett.

GUNMEN GONE FOREVER

The gunman of the Old West has vanished from the pages of American history. He went out of style when determined pioneers turned thumbs down on outlawry.

Today the gunman makes his home in the centers of heavy population and shoots stealthily from cover. The old two-gun desperado lived in the open country and he at least had the courage to draw when he and his opponent were face to face.

Zane Gray's latest romance of the Old West, "Nevada," which comes to the Liberty, Estacada, Sunday and Monday, recounts the last days of the cattle country daredevils and lawbreakers. It has been filmed by Paramount under the direction of John Waters. Most of the gun play is done by Gary Cooper, young western star, and William Powell, heavy. The cause of their feud is Thelma Todd, leading woman.

THRILLS GALORE PROMISED IN THE ROYAL AMERICAN

Reed Howes is always ready for a fight or a frolic. This fact he has demonstrated conclusively in any number of his Rayart successes. And he demonstrates it anew—and more convincingly than ever before—in "The Royal American," his newest release which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre, Estacada, Saturday, only.

"The Royal American" is a story of the sea, and a gripping story it is. Reed has the role of a young officer of the coast guard patrol, who, thru befriending a beautiful girl, becomes involved in a veritable mesh of treachery which culminates when he is shanghaied and carried away on "The Hawk," a notorious schooner, which is owned and operated by "Bruiser" Burke. Burke, by the way is played as only J. P. McGowan could play it.

"The Royal American" is two fist-ed entertainment, with a universal appeal for men, women and children alike. Women will revel in Reed's good looks and his ability to make love, while the men cannot fail to praise him for his athletic prowess and his utter fearlessness. While as for the kids—the story was made for them.

Don't fail to see "The Royal American," a great picture.

GRANDPA BULGER PLEASES CHILDREN AT EAGLE CREEK

Grandpa Bulger, children's entertainer over the radio, proved very popular with the kiddies, as well as the grownups, when he appeared at the Eagle Creek school house Friday night at an entertainment sponsored by the Eagle Creek Trading company and the Parent-Teachers association.

Mr. Bulger, a former circus clown, is a famous cartoonist and amused all with his clever drawings. He told stories, and after the pies in the contest were judged he sold the winning pies at auction.

A capacity house greeted Mr. Bulger and as a result of the entertainment the Parent-Teachers association added several dollars to its fund and the children had a wonderfully good time.
