THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING

When the Pilgrim fathers set apart a day for the purpose of thanking God for blessings they enjoyed, they established one of the most inspiring events of the entire year. And they really did thank their Creator from the very depths of their hearts. Today we observe Thanksgiving, but most of us end right there. Few of us really enter into the spirit of Thanksgiving as established and practiced by the Pilgrims.

Never in history have we had greater reasons for being thankful than we have this year. But most of us accept the many great privileges we now enjoy as a matter of course, and look upon this day set apart to give thanks to God as merely another holiday.

Let us stop for a moment and sum up the many things we enjoy, and observe this Thanksgiving with the same spirit of thankfulness as did those hardy pioneers more than three hundred years ago. Individually, let's us make it really and truly a day of Thanksgiving.

HOOVER GOOD-WILL TOUR

That the first activity of Mr. Hoover as President-elect should take the form of a personal good-will tour to the republics of Central and South America is an evidence of his strong desire to bring the countries of the western hemisphere into closer accord.

Following the success of Ambassador Marrow in Mexico and that of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and the army good-will flyers, the visit of Mr. Hoover to Latin-America may be expected to bring further happy results, both in the interest of international peace and in benefits to American commerce.

For a great while the countries to the south of us have looked upon the United States with a certain degree of distrust. They have felt that we were too prone to interfere in their domestic affairs and apparently feared that the "Colossus of the North" had designs against their sovereignty.

Any action which will tend to allay these fears and gain the confidence of our Latin-American neighbors is important. That Mr. Hoover's visit will accomplish much in this direction can not be doubted.

Every indication points to one of the most prosperous periods in history immediately ahead of us. It is up to the individual himself to take advantage of it.
