

CHURCHES

Estacada Christian Church

The Bible school lesson for Sunday morning is an old, old story that we all love. Yes, a story that is quite often told, and it is true, yet it is always new. It is the story of the church, the church that Jesus loved and purchased with his Own blood. You will want to hear it again, and we want you to. There is always a cordial invitation and a hearty welcome for you.

The Saviour said, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." So the morning sermon message is "The Word Power of God."

Recruiting for Christ is the Christian Endeavor topic. You won't want to miss it. Come at 6:30 and enjoy an hour with the young people. Miss Olga Samuelson is leader, Miss Bessie Andersen, president.

The services are prepared for you—come and enjoy them.—Hugh Foster, pastor.

Estacada Methodist Church

There is no thought that could not be expressed differently, no writing with which all agree; when we actually do things, we invite criticism.

If you are worthy and successful you will arouse envy. If you are incapable, folks will call you a fool. Successful or unsuccessful, people will talk about you.

But criticism should only make you pep up and do your best. Unfavorable comment should simply make you more watchful.

When you are no longer criticized, you have finished and the world will forget you.

Our friend, the mechanical engineer, tells us that it takes six times as much power to start a flywheel from a dead start as it does to keep it going, once it is in motion. In other words, it takes only one-sixth as much effort to keep going good once you are on the way as it does to stop a bit and rest and then start again. Criticism should be the dynamo to force one ahead. When you are tempted to slacken just because things are coming your way, remember the flywheel. Create favorable circumstances. If it is in you it can be accomplished. The great dynamo of all life is Jesus Christ.

Get an interest in attending church twice on Sunday for there is a message in both sermons. Next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the theme will be "Concerning the Spirit of God." At 7:30 in the evening the theme will be "The Pilgrim's Journey." Sunday school at 10 a. m., and Epworth League at 6:30 p. m.

There will be services at Viola on Sunday morning at 9:45, the first since the pastor was injured. Let all come. You have a cordial invitation.—C. T. Cook, pastor.

Sandy Lutheran

Lent is a season of penitence, a time for earnest heart searching. God is visiting the earth with His divine correction for her sins. All the suffering of these days, the privations, the woes and the worries are the result of sin. The call to the world today is Repent! Repent! It is only by devout repentance and turning to God's forgiving love in Christ that His anger will be turned to mercy. For your own sake, for your country's sake, and for the world's sake, let everyone hear the call of Lent and repent.

You are invited to worship with us English services next Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The subject of the sermon will be "The Cross." This is the first of a series of sermons during the Lenten season, having as a theme "The Cross."—F. T. Schoen, pastor.

Popular Young Girl Weds in Seattle
(From Shelton, Wash., Independent)

Miss Cecile Read of Shelton was married Thursday evening to Bryan Gates of Seattle. The ceremony was performed in Seattle, and the bride looked handsome in a smart traveling ensemble.

Mrs. Gates is the youngest daughter of Thomas Read, veteran town marshal of Shelton. She was educated here, and was one of the popular young girls of the city.

Bryan Gates, a former student of the University of Washington, is a newspaper circulation expert and recently completed a successful campaign for the Shelton Independent. The romance began when Mr. Gates was working in this vicinity.

The young couple motored to Shelton Friday morning and visited the bride's father, and then left Friday evening for Sandy, Ore., where Mr. Gates is assisting in a circulation campaign for the Clackamas County News.

"SALLY OF THE SCANDALS"
LIBERTY BILL SATURDAY

The stage and its people, their triumphs and their sorrows—all are brought to the screen in "Sally of the Scandals," the unusual picture which Bill Perry has booked for his feature for Saturday, March 2, only.

Lynn Shores, the director, uncovers for the public the intimate details of the average life of the theatre and its people, and he is said to maintain throughout the performance an illusion of reality which is in every way remarkable.

To secure the necessary backstage atmosphere, Mr. Shores arranged to shoot his stage scenes in the beautiful Mayan Theatre in Los Angeles, where "Sunny" was playing. FBO claims the distinction of being the first producing company to turn his theatre into a motion picture studio, as the Mayan had only been open a few months. A large proportion of the cast of the musical comedy was used in these scenes, including the entire chorus, whose dances directed by Maurice Kussell were photographed from many new and interesting angles.

Diminutive Bessie Love plays the starring role, that of the ambitious little chorus girl, who after many heartaches and disappointments, makes the grade, and is acclaimed a leader among musical comedy stars. The role of hero is in the capable hands of Allan Forest, who achieved fame as a leading man with Mary Pickford in "Dorothy Vernon of Hadron Hall." The third of the important characters is played by Margaret Quimby, a former "George White's Scandals" beauty. The rest of the cast comprises Irene Lambert, Jimmy Phillips, Jack Raymond and Jerry Miley.

SANDY CAMPFIRE GIRLS MEET

Mrs. Birch Roberts was hostess to the Sandy Campfire girls last meeting. Those present included Dorothy Bruns, Ruth Barnett, Amanda Perret, Arletha Proctor, Louise Lucas, Velma Webster, Phyllis Christianson, Evelyn Roberts, Roberta Smith, Mrs. Webster, Mrs. Roberts, and Mrs. Ralph Brown, leader, and Alice Strong, lieutenant.

A SUNSET

One Sunday evening, not so long ago, I saw one of the most beautiful scenes that ever has been my pleasure to look upon. Perhaps others saw it, too, but I know it is well worth telling about for the sake of those who did not.

The sky in the east was almost clear but here and there a grey cloud interrupted the pale-blue monotone. The western sky was motley with dark grey clouds, while in the southwest the clouds were massive and dark purple in hue.

The sun had made fitful attempts at shining all day, but it succeeded only in a melancholy sort of half-hearted brilliance. But now it appeared to have gathered all its strength in a final effort to prove its power.

When I first noticed it, the sky had changed from a sort of steel-blue to a delicate shade of pale azure. The sun had tinted the sullen clouds with just a touch of pink and had changed the grey-white of the surrounding snow-covered hills by shading it with pale pink and darkly etched shadows. Each mound of snow enhanced its brilliant whiteness with faint shades of blue and salmon. Gradually the shades of color and the whiteness of the snow, brightened until the whole scene was a blend of clear colors ranging from the palest of pastel shades to the most brilliant of vivid reds, and blues, and gleaming white.

Then slowly the color drained and finally left the northeastern hills, sky and snow a dull ash-grey in the darkening twilight. I watched the colors fade and then when the horizon looked like the personification of desolate despair, I looked to the southwest and beheld all the hues that had glorified the east, in a concentrated blaze of beauty on the opposite horizon.

The sun itself was invisible but it had illuminated the formidable clouds in the south to a gorgeous flame color. The background of more solid clouds that had been a dark grey, appeared to be a deep mediterranean blue, in contrast with the brighter clouds. The clouds made a canopy of subtly yet constantly changing colors, for the forest of green trees that looked almost black in the fading light of evening.

Then as the sun coursed its way far down back of the hills, I watched the flaming grandeur of the sunset reluctantly surrender to the bleak night.

SANDY LOCALS

Thirty-two Sandy I. O. O. F. members visited the Samaritan lodge of Portland last week, where six candidates took degree work. Sandy lodge is growing rapidly.

SANDY SCHOOLS

Claire Payn will play the clarinet in Sandy high band. There is only one other girl in the band this year. Claire used to play in the famous girls' band of Seaside.

The operetta, "Miss Cherry Blossom," will be given at the high school March 22, under the direction of Miss Shell.

Sandy boys lost at Molalla, but the girls won with a good margin. R. W. Mallery journeyed with the teams to serve as timekeeper, and went to his home at Newberg Saturday.

Friday night Franklin high wrestlers won the score here, but Sandy boys are gaining, and have the "makings" of a real team.

Sandy easily defeated both teams of Hill Military academy, the first team scores being 57 to 13 for Sandy, the second 14 to 19. V. Bacon starred for Sandy with 21 points.

Here and There

Karl Maertich, of Metz, hanged himself because his wife bobbed her hair without his permission.

George Rawson, aged 9, of St. Louis, held up an apple for a playmate to shoot at, but his thumb was shot away instead.

"Mr. Doe," a mystery man of London who served a five-year sentence for larceny, has been identified as the son of a nobleman.

Ignace Shorski, of Chicago, was given a jail sentence for cutting off his dog's tail.

F. H. Kilborn, a one-legged man, rescued a little girl from drowning, at St. Louis.

When a girl baby was abandoned in a London church, more than 400 women offered to adopt her.

After a dance at the home of Thomas Costello, in Cork, 14 guests were held up and robbed by the fidler who furnished the music.

Fuel system of the new Ford has been designed for reliability and long service

THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel,terne plated to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.

As a matter of fact, the fuel system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little service attention.

The filter or sediment bulb should be cleaned at regular intervals and the carburetor screen removed and washed in gasoline. Occasionally the drain plug at the bottom of the carburetor should be removed and the carburetor drained for a few seconds.

Have your Ford dealer look after these important little details for you when you have the car oiled and greased. A thorough, periodic checking-up costs little, but it has a great deal to do with long life and continuously good performance.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 13 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service.
