CLARA BOW FEATURED IN
"POISONED PARADISE"

Clara Bow will be seen at her best on Wednesday, April 10, at the Liberty Theatre, Estacada, in "Poisoned Paradise." This is the outstanding screen production of Robert W. Service's famous novel known as the forbidden story, exposing Monte Carlo's innermost gambling secrets. It presents the sensational mathematical calculations by which Prof. Durand of the Sorbonne university of Paris succeeds in outwitting the best roulette wheels of chance at the world's most famous gambling resort, that of Monte Carlo.

In "Poisoned Paradise" you will enjoy an intricate comedy-drama, starring Clara Bow, who supplies the delightful comedy, with the assistance of an unusual all-star supporting cast, including Kenneth Harlan, Raymond Griffith and Carmel Myers.

A new English device cuts, crimps and seals the edges of pie crusts before baking.

Capable of playing tunes, a miniature phonograph is no larger than a watch.

VIOLA

VIOLA, April 4.—(Special).—The P.-T. A. met at the church on Friday evening. We were all disappointed that Grandpa Bulger could not be with us that evening, as on account of sickness he could not come; but he wrote to Earl Lankin, our program chairman, that he would come out soon and bring more players with him, also he would give a talk at the school to the pupils that same afternoon. The quilt made by the ladies brought $18.25, which leaves only $8 to be paid on the piano. The next meeting will be on April 26, when a play is to be given by the gentlemen. Refreshments will also be served.

The program on Friday evening was fine, although gotten up on short notice. Two young sons of Mr. and Mrs. C. Fontz played guitars and Darius Fontz played the violin. Mr. C. B. Stone gave two songs and her little daughter also sang two songs very nicely; little Doris Lankin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lankin, sang a cute little song; then there were recitations by Lewis Hubbard, Caroline Jubb, Esther LaCroy, Doris Mattoon and Leslie Heinbotham, as well as two songs by our president, Mrs. Shackelford. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served. All had a pleasant time.
