TWO STAGE PLAYERS BREAK INTO THE MOVIES

Bernard Gorcey and Ida Kramer, creators of the roles of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Cohen in the original stage production of Anne Nichols' "Abie's Irish Rose," and who appeared in every performance given on Broadway for over five and one-half years, in the sensational run of the play, were given their original parts in the film version of the Nichols' success. The play was translated to the screen by Paramount and will be the feature attraction at the Liberty Theatre, Estacada, on Sunday and Monday, May 19 and 20.

Most of the comedy action is built around this pair. They handle their roles in the same characteristic manner that won them so much praise during the Broadway run. Neither had appeared in motion pictures before. Screen fans are certain to receive them favorably.

Charles "Buddy" Rogers and Nancy Carroll have the featured roles in the film version of the play. Jean Hersholt and J. Farrell MacDonald also contribute no little to the success of performance as the fathers of the pair.

Miss Nichols personally supervised the filming of her play at the Paramount studio in Hollywood. The New York company of "Abie's Irish Rose" closed its record run on October 22, 1927, after five and one-half years of continuous playing. It could have continued playing but Miss Nichols was anxious to be present on the Paramount "lot" when the cameras began turning on her famous play.
