

"Ye have need of patience"

Many persons are ready to admit that they have need of patience. Some are earnestly striving to cultivate it, and occasionally someone may feel that he has measurably succeeded in realizing it. One engaged in any legitimate pursuit may exercise this quality in the sense of perseverance or endurance in working toward some desired end. But in other respects it enters into one's attitude toward affliction, provocation, or any evil, either as a negative, passive endurance or else as a positive spirit of fortitude, meekness, and unconquerable trust in good. It was in the truer sense that the writer of the epistle to the Hebrews, after referring to the "great fight of afflictions" which they had endured, said to the Christian converts: "Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise" (Hebrews 10: 32, 35, 36).

The world has witnessed many fine examples of forbearance of one toward another. In view of another's seeming faults, infirmities, or need for comfort or care; examples of courage necessary to face difficult conditions with a calm expectation of some desirable outcome, and of a kindness maintained under vexatious stress. Indeed, in all such instances of discipline patience is equivalent to an undaunted confidence in something higher and better than the troublesome error. And this shows that good is ever present, and that it is in some measure grasped and manifested by right-thinking persons.

Much greater, then, is the impetus toward "patient continuance in well doing" (Romans 2: 7) when, through Christian Science, good is discerned as divine Principle to be understood and demonstrated; when it is seen that we need patience toward ourselves, as we seek in calm perseverance to know the spiritual reality, so that after we "have done the will of God" we may "receive the promise." What is the will of God, and what are the promises to be fulfilled, as our thoughts are conformed to His will? These are questions we need to consider, that we may learn wherein we "have need of patience." Cultivating a calm, steadfast character is praiseworthy; but gaining true patience means more than this. It means persevering in the effort to understand God and man, so that in all our common or unusual experiences we may express the truth which we know to be real, and thus face all things not only with kindness, but with power, the power of reflected love, which heals discordant conditions. . . .

This view of patience as a quality we need in working out our own salvation from material self and sense, helps us to be truly forbearing toward others, for in striving to conform to divine Principle we more clearly see as unreal the conditions which tempt us to impatience, discontent, weariness, resentment. And in healing our own thoughts we are in that measure bringing the healing truth to discordant conditions and to all involved therein.

Our great need is to understand God and man and faithfully apply our understanding, looking to good with unconquerable hope and love. This we must do; this alone helps us to overcome our difficulties. Mary Baker Eddy says in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, "The Divine Being must be reflected by man,—else man is not the image

ACTIVE FOR AGRICULTURE

H. H. Chindgren, Meadowbrook Farmer Devoted to Farm Interests

Review of the career of Herman H. Chindgren reveals his intense interest in agricultural affairs in behalf of Clackamas county and the state of Oregon. His devotion to agricultural interests dates back a number of years during which he has served the state in many ways.

In 1926 Mr. Chindgren was chairman of the Clackamas county economic conference which was sponsored by the extension service of the Oregon state college and which included practically all branches of agriculture. He was largely responsible for the installation of an agricultural department in the Molalla union high school under the Smith-Hughes act. For eight years he was a member of the board of directors of the high school at Molalla. Perhaps Mr. Chindgren is best known thru his 12 years of service with the Clackamas county fair and during all that time he has been president of the fair association and also of the Oregon state association of fairs.

He is now serving a third term as president of the county 4-H club leaders league and has been a club leader for 12 years. He was recently unanimously elected president of the Clifton-Meadowbrook farm bureau for the 15th consecutive year. He is a member of the grange and the Clackamas county public health association.

Three years ago Mr. Chindgren was appointed as a member of the governor's tax and linen board. He is a director of the Luther League park and chairman of the Boy Scout committee. He also has membership in the Mt. Angel creamery cooperative and Pacific wool growers cooperative.

The services that Mr. Chindgren has rendered to the public thru legislation is worthy of note. He was chairman of the committee on agriculture thru three sessions of the state legislature and in that capacity he handled legislation for all agricultural groups, including the poultry producers and other similar organizations. The potato act was written by his committee and he also induced the legislature to increase the indemnity paid to farmers for condemned livestock.

Mr. Chindgren was also a member of the committee on taxation, labor and industry. He was co-author of the free text book bill and of the bill creating the department of agriculture. He also supported standardization laws for agricultural commodities and was instrumental in the passage of indirect tax laws and of legislation beneficial to labor and the veterans.

Mr. Chindgren has consented to become a candidate for representative in the legislature. He stands for equality for agriculture and for progressive legislation. He fought successfully for laws which have eliminated a property tax for state purposes. He has been for 29 years a resident of Meadowbrook where he is engaged in diversified farming. There are few men in Oregon who have been as active in behalf of agriculture as has Mr. Chindgren. He favors old age pensions without pauperizing recipients and stands for cooperation with the federal government in the utilization of Bonneville power.

A large representation of the local Odd Fellows lodge went to Oregon City last Saturday to attend the convention.

Mrs. W. W. Rhodes of Estacada spent the week end of April 23-24 with her daughter, Mildred on the Oregon normal school campus at Monmouth. The occasion was the annual All-Parent week end during which the students entertained more than two hundred parents and friends. During her visit to the campus, she together with over two hundred other parents and friends was entertained by demonstrations by the physical education department, which included folk dancing, stunts and a baseball game against Linfield college, three one-act plays by the Crimson, "O", the college dramatic organization and a musical program using the combined talent of the choir, chorus, and orchestra. President Churchill and representatives of the faculty and student body addressed the parents Saturday afternoon expressing their welcome and explaining something of life on the campus.

Estacada Man Lauded By Friends

History has been consistent in showing to us that we must look for men who really do things to those who come from the soil—the man from the backwoods, from the log cabins, the farms.

The burr in the political bonnet of the Oregon City political trust has been one, Barney Schoenburg, the first county official to come to the county seat from the Estacada district in over 30 years.

Barney is a fighter. His record stands for good, clean and progressive government. His chairmanship of the county planning board in connection with the Works Progress Administration in Clackamas county, has won for this district the reputation of being one of the outstanding in the United States.

Here are a few of the projects that are monuments of the labors of Barney Schoenburg.

- Eagle Fern park and road to park
- County Road blanket projects.
- Johnson Creek flood control.
- Boring drainage district.
- Oswego Bridge path project.
- Clackamas Co. WPA library project.
- Clackamas County sewing projects.
- NYA Projects to take care of youth
- Sandy Waterworks.
- Park Place waterworks.
- Campfire Girls building
- Oswego South Shore boulevard.
- Overhead crossing and Summit drive.

Barney Schoenburg who came from the farm to the office of county commissioner can and does stand on his record. That he has not become a member of the political plot that has been brewing within the county does additional credit to an unusually fine record.

PAID AD by the re-elect Barney Schoenburg for commissioner committee.

For Supreme Court

JOHN W. McCULLOCH

John W. McCulloch who is a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, Position No. 2, and whose name will appear on the Non-Partisan Judiciary ballot on May 20, has been a resident of Oregon more than 50 years and has been actively engaged in the practice of law for 40 years. He was district attorney for Grant, Harney and Malheur counties from 1904 to 1913 and was appointed assistant U. S. district attorney in 1928. Since that time he has been chief assistant U. S. Attorney under George Neuner and later under Carl C. Donagh. In 1934 he was appointed special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States and was placed in charge of all legal work for the Bonneville project.

Oregon has a Non-Partisan Judiciary law and it is the intent of the law to take Judiciary positions out of politics. Mr. McCulloch has served under Mr. Neuner who was a republican and also under Mr. Donagh who was a democrat. His appointment as special assistant to the attorney general of the United States was made by attorney general John G. Sargent, a republican, and also by attorney general Homer S. Cummings, a democrat.

Mr. McCulloch possesses the necessary judicial temperament and is well qualified to render competent judicial service for the state of Oregon. He solicits your support and vote in the coming election on May 20.—Paid advertisement.
