KUNKEL HEADS SURPLUS MARKET WORK IN WEST

Appointment of Charles F. Kunkel as acting regional director of surplus marketing administration of surplus marketing operations in Region I, the eleven western states was announced recently in Washington by Milo Perkins administrator of the surplus marketing administration of the U. S. department of agriculture.

Acting as regional director during the absence of Jonathan Garst who will be in Washington, D. C. for the next six months assisting with national problems of distribution of surplus food products Mr. Kunkel will be aided in administration activities by Robert J. Graves, assistant regional representative.

Mr. Kunkel's duties will embrace direction of school lunch program, food stamp and cotton stamp programs and direct distribution program in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Colorado, Utah, California, Arizona and New Mexico.

Thru its distribution divisions the surplus marketing administration attempts to bridge the gap between price-depressing farm surpluses and under consumption by low income families in our nation.

During December 1940 SMA reports indicate that nearly three million members of families in the nation as a whole receiving public assistance added $6,587,000 worth of food to their diets by use of blue surplus food stamps.

Purchases during December with blue stamps representing new outlets for specified farm products included 2,336,000 pounds of butter, 2-963,000 dozen eggs, 25-117,000 pounds of white and graham flour and 8-517,000 pounds of other cereals, 8-850,000 pounds of pork, 5,093,999 pounds of pork lard, 27,566,000 pounds of potatoes and 10,212,000 pounds of other vegetables.

Other blue stamp purchases included 2,086,000 dozens of fresh oranges, 6,757,000 pounds of fresh apples, 4,746,000 fresh grapefruit, and 2-405,000 pounds of dried prunes and raisins and 425,000 pounds of fresh pears.

More than one hundred million pounds of agricultural surpluses have gone into the mouth of hungry school children in the nation thru the school lunch program. Last year the following amounts of food were used by the nation's schools: One million dozen eggs, five million pounds butter, 17 million pounds citrus fruits, 31 million pounds apples, six million pounds peaches, one million seven hundred thousand pounds dried prunes and three million four hundred thousand pounds raisins.

In operation since December 18, 1939 the food stamp plan in San Francisco county has used approximately $989,989 worth of blue food stamps.

Department officials have announced that operation of the food stamp plan will begin Monday, February 17 in the following counties: Alameda, Contra Costa, San Mateo and Santa Clara.

Mattress Plan is Explained

Clackamas county agent J. J. Inskeep of the Oregon extension service announces that rural people of the county will have an opportunity whereby they can have new mattresses for their homes and at the same time be a good neighbor to our cotton farmers of the south.

Just as Oregon has certain surplus commodities to dispose of since the loss of their foreign markets so the cotton farmer has millions of bales of cotton in their warehouses. Thru the efforts of the U. S. department of agriculture and its agencies this surplus cotton is being made available for mattresses. For each family that is interested and can qualify under the eligibility regulations as listed in this article there are 50 pounds of cotton and 10 yards of ticking available for the construction of a high quality mattress.

The extension service, agricultural adjustment administration surplus marketing administration, farm security administration and county court are cooperating to make this program possible.

Mattress making centers will be established. The home demonstration agent and home supervisor of the farm security administration will train leaders and supervise the construction of these mattresses. The only cost to the families will be the effort to make them and a nominal fee for the twine, thread and needles used in their construction.

Clackamas county is doubly interested in this national program because each year we send thousands of pounds of vetch and pea seed to the south for their soil building and soil conserving programs states Inskeep.

Those who qualify under the eligibility plans of this program should contact the extension service, agricultural adjustment administration or farm security office for an application blank. These applications may be signed at these offices or at community meetings held by these agencies thruout the county.

All applications must be on file in these offices by April 1. It is estimated that 1000 mattresses will be made in Clackamas county under this program.

A farm family whose net income is $500 or less per year for a family of one to four persons may qualify. If there are more than four family members $50 for each additional member may be added; five members $550; six members $600.

To determine the net income subtract the cost of operation of the farm from the total income from all farm sources sale of crops, livestock, etc. The cost of operation will include such items as labor hired outside of the family, feed purchased, taxes paid, water rights, threshing expense.

A part time farm family may qualify if at least half the income is from agriculture and if their total net income from farm and non-farm sources is not over $500 for a family of four members. An additional $50 may be added to this income for each additional family member; $550 for five members, $600 for six members, etc.

The total net income from farm sources plus the total income from other sources is the gross income of the part-time farmer. An additional $100 may be subtracted from this gross amount to determine the net income that will meet eligibility requirements for this purpose.

A non-farm family living in a rural area under a population of 2500 (1940 census) may qualify if their gross income is $500 or less per family of one to four members, over four members add $50 for each additional family member.

Each eligible family may receive material to make one full size mattress for each two persons in the family, but the total is not to exceed three mattresses to a family. If the family has already received one mattress under the cotton mattress program or the Works Project administration this is included in determining the total number which it may receive. A family of three may receive only one mattress; a family of five two.
